HAPPY TRAILS 4th ANNUAL SUMMER PICNIC/FUNDRAISER: make plans now to attend!

We weren't able to have a Fall Festival this past season due to the incredible amount of work we have had here at the sanctuary, the overwhelming number of animals needing care, and not enough volunteers to organize an event of this magnitude properly. We made the difficult decision at the time to cancel the Fall Festival. So we will be making up for this by having the biggest and best ever Happy Trails Annual Summer Picnic/Fundraiser to be held on Sunday, June 27, 2004.

We are in the midst of planning the festivities, and would like you to be a part of this annual, fun-filled day when Happy Trails opens it’s gates to the public. We enjoy having all the people who support our rescue work visit the sanctuary, spend time with the animals, and see the progress we are making with the facility.

VOLUNTEERING TO HELP WITH THE PICNIC:

Fun activities are being planned for the day, and as always we will need volunteers to help coordinate and arrange everything from pre-picnic special promotions and signage to helping out the day of the picnic by helping staff booths for crafts, sales of t-shirts and baseball hats, informational tables, refreshments and Nancy Conring Receives Girl Scouts Hidden Heroine Award!

Congratulations to Happy Trail’s very own Nancy Conring for being chosen to receive the Girl Scouts of the Western Reserve Hidden Heroine Award!

At a recognition dinner held on March 11 at the Akron Women’s City Club, Nancy was recognized for her nonstop work concerning the care and well-being of animals everywhere.

Not only does Nancy hold the important position of Treasurer on the Happy Trails Board of Directors, she works a full time job, donates time every weekend to the care of the farm animals residing at the sanctuary, makes time throughout the week to haul pigs to the vet, returns an amazing number of phone calls, organizes hay deliveries, transports goats to their new homes, helps plan fund-raisers, schedules volunteer times at Happy Trails community events booths, and watches over and cares for any needy dogs, cats and other assorted animals in her own neighborhood. W hew!

Whenever anyone calls Nancy, her husband, Chuck, will often say, “Nancy’s out feeding something somewhere.”

Nancy daily sets a shining example of how people should put forth that extra effort to care for our furry and feathered friends who rely on us for their well being and comfort.

When Nancy first started helping out at Happy Trails, she had her own animal family consisting of an assortment of lucky dogs and cats. She has since opened her heart and home to a variety of chickens, ducks and rabbits, and added them to her growing outdoor family. Chuck always has the concern with Nancy that the outdoor family will become his indoor family!

Congratulations, Nancy, for receiving well-deserved recognition for all the work you do on behalf of abused, abandoned and neglected animals! Happy Trails is very proud to have Nancy on our team. The animals are the lucky recipients of her love and care, and we think the world of her!

Rachel Salzer Accepts Awards For Volunteer Work With Happy Trails

Happy Trails Farm Animal Sanctuary has received recognition based on the work of our dedicated volunteer and current Happy Trails President, Rachel Salzer. Make A Difference Day activities of food and supply collections ranked Happy Trails in the top 40 projects in the state.

Also, word has been received that Rachel’s work at Happy Trails will be included in stories of community service in an upcoming book. Empowered Girls: A Girl’s Guide to Positive Activism, Volunteering and Philanthropy will be released in May. Within it’s pages can be found the story of Happy Trails and Rachel’s work on behalf of the animals. The book is affiliated with Duke University.

Equine Programs of Happy Trails Acknowledged in Upcoming Horse Rescue Book

Annette Fisher, Executive Director of Happy Trails was more than happy to participate in an interview for a book concerning horses rescued from the track due to her personal passion for taking in Standardbreds. Bill Heller, author and writer for the Thoroughbred Times of New York is working on a book entitled “After the Finish Line.” This book will take an in-depth look at the lives of track horses once their career is over, and how rescue groups play an important role in their destiny.

In a chapter about Standardbreds, the race horses that pull the carts, Happy Trails will be given recognition for our work with this wonderful breed of equine. Happy Trails has successfully rescued and found loving homes for a good deal of ex-race horses and ex-buggy horses from the Amish community. Look for this informative book by Bill Heller to be coming out at the end of the year.
Dear Friend of Happy Trails,

I really didn't want to go see the movie “Seabiscuit”. Any movie that could be remotely sad in any way I try to steer clear of — there's always enough drama here at the sanctuary that I really don't need to go in search of more. However, I was talked into seeing the movie about the Thoroughbred racehorse named Seabiscuit, and I'm glad that I did. I found an answer to a question that I have been asked many times and was never quite sure what to say.

I have been questioned from time to time about why we try to save some of the horses that are not rideable. There are some people who have reasoned it out that we should pick and choose only those that we are sure will be “fixable” enough to ride and work again. “Well you know”, they often point out, “you can't save them all.” As though we are delusional enough to pretend that we can!

How do you explain to someone that when you are called to a neglect situation to provide help, that you simply cannot look the sad, pathetic, half-starved horse in his kind eyes and then walk away because he is simply not worth saving? How do you explain to the horse that is left to suffer that maybe we shouldn't try to “fix him” because he will be of no use to anybody? I often have a difficult time trying to explain how I feel about the lame and injured horses being given a decent quality of life and a chance to know that they are loved and cared for by someone. They can often make another horse a great pasture mate or a great teacher for a yearling.

Getting back to the movie...as the movie went along, a trainer was chosen for Seabiscuit. This man was compassionate toward horses and came upon a situation where a beautiful mare had a leg injury and was going to be of no use to her owner. The owner of the injured horse pulled out a gun and prepared to shoot the horse as others stood by and some even helped to hold her down. Seabiscuit's trainer stepped in and offered to “take the horse off his hands”. The owner couldn't understand what anyone would want with a lame horse, but after a moment of disbelief, put away his gun and handed the horse over.

The trainer wrapped the horses leg and used a special root under the wrapping. To make a long story short, the rescued horse became the best friend of Seabiscuit and traveled everywhere with him as his constant companion.

But to backtrack: after the trainer had wrapped the leg and the horse was munching grass contentedly, the trainer was sitting on the ground near the horse. Seabiscuit's owner came up to the trainer and asked him basically the same question that I am never quite sure how to answer. “Why did you bother to fix her up?”

The old trainer quietly thought about it for a moment, and looked up at Seabiscuit's owner and simply replied, “Because I can...”

If you haven't seen the movie yet, watch it just so you can catch this heartwarming scene, which gave me the answer I needed to be able to give to others.

Sincerely,

Annette Fisher
Executive Director
children’s activities.

We will be doing our very best during the weeks before the picnic to make preparations for the big event, and as always can use volunteers to help clean stalls, mow grass, do basic yard work, rake out the piggy pens, and general clean-up preparations. Please remember that you must be at least 16 years old to volunteer. If you would like to be a part of our Summer Picnic Committee, give us a call at (330) 296-5914.

MAKING RESERVATIONS TO ATTEND

Though there is no admission charge to attend the picnic, we do require that anyone planning to attend RSVP and make reservations due to our limited space. Reservations can now be made online at happytrailsfarm.org or by calling Nancy or Chuck Conring at (330) 733-1478. Guests may sign up to attend in two hour increments so that we may welcome the largest number of guests possible. Times to sign up are from 11am-1pm, 1pm-3pm, or 3pm-5pm.

WHERE TO PARK

Thanks to the kind folks at PARTA, Happy Trails is able to welcome even more guests this year due to the convenience of shuttle parking for the picnic. The shuttle is also handicapped accessible.

Parking will be at Havre Woods Park as well as across the street from the park at both Accordino & Butch Chiropractic Center as well as at Young Friends Childcare Center. These parking facilities are a whole three minutes down the street from Happy Trails. They are located immediately across Rt. 5 on New Milford Road as you head North. The addresses are: Accordino & Butch Chiropractic Center 5940 New Milford Road, and Young Friends Childcare Center 5968 New Milford Road.

There will be plenty of signs pointing the way to help direct you to the parking lots. Many thanks to the City of Ravenna Parks Department, Dr. Accordino and Dr. Butch, and the kind folks at Young Friends Childcare Center for allowing Happy Trails access to their parking lots!

WHAT TO WEAR

Happy Trails Farm Animal Sanctuary is exactly that — a FARM ANIMAL Sanctuary. The words FARM and ANIMAL are the equivalents of dirt and mud and uneven ground that can be sloppy with rain or sprinkled with gravel and stones — we suggest that you dress appropriately: in comfortable walking shoes or boots; in clothes that can easily wash off fur or feathers or horse slobber (in other words, not your Sunday best); and bring a rain coat in case of rain — the picnic is always a rain or shine deal.

VEGETARIAN PICNIC LUNCH

A complimentary vegetarian lunch and refreshments will be provided for our guests. Many animals will be saved the day of the picnic by everyone enjoying a healthy, meatless meal. In this way we honor the farm animals that have been rescued from situations of abuse and neglect, and do not promote further inhumane conditions of the many cruel slaughterhouses. A vegetarian lunch is a compassionate lunch!

KIDS ACTIVITIES

Getting a prize from the duck pond is sure to bring a smile to the face of all kids from ages 1 to 100. Or try your luck at the farm animal bean bag toss! And at the kids crafts table children can make their very own farm animal to take home or color a page from a farm coloring book.

INFORMATIONAL BOOTHS

Interested in adopting a farm animal or a horse from one of our equine rescue programs? Other adoptive moms and dads will be on hand to talk to you about the adoption process and their experience with adopting a rescued animal. Not enough room at your place to actually adopt? Then get some information about our monthly sponsorship program. Have extra time and want to get more involved as a volunteer? Pick up a volunteer application and talk to friendly folks who are already regular volunteers for Happy Trails.

Want to learn more about pot belly pigs? Visit the pot belly pig information table and give a lucky pig a belly rub! Want to find out what kind of safe shelter is needed to keep your ducks and chickens safe from predators? Visit the information table at the duck and chicken enclosure.

PET CEMETERY SERVICE & BLESSING OF THE ANIMALS

A special memorial service will be held at the back of the property at Heaven’s Trail, the pet cemetery where some of the rescued animals have been laid to rest. Reverend John Fisk from The Church In The Valley will be blessing the cemetery in a unique ceremony celebrating Native American Indian traditions at 3:30p.m. Everyone is welcome to bring a photo to hold during the ceremony.
of a beloved pet who has passed away, and announce their pet’s name during the ceremony so that they may all be remembered in love and peace. We will also have a special blessing earlier in the day of the animals who have been rescued and are currently being cared for at the sanctuary.

BEING A PICNIC SPONSOR

Businesses and corporations (as well as individuals) are welcome to support the rescue work at Happy Trails by becoming a sponsor for the day of the picnic. You may wish to sponsor a horse stall in the new barn, a pot belly piggy shelter, the duck’s pond, the pet cemetery, etc. Sponsors will be acknowledged with special signage at their specific area of the sanctuary, listed in the Summer Picnic Program, talked about in the next “Happy Tales” newsletter, and receive recognition on the Happy Trails website. For more details about the opportunity to become a picnic sponsor, please call (330) 296-5914.

EVERYONE IS WELCOME!

It’s a fun day with the opportunity to meet not only the rescued animals, but to be in the wonderful company of other people like yourself who truly care about the humane treatment of our furry and feathered friends. Hope to see you (if not shoveling poop and cleaning with us the week before) on the day of the picnic!

SPECIAL THANKS

Thanks ahead of time to Jan Sponsler, host of the Wadsworth-based cable television program Animal Crackers. Jan plans on taping yet another segment of her show here at Happy Trails at the Summer picnic. Congratulations to Jan and her crew for winning the coveted Clapper Award for one of the segments of Happy Trails taped last year!

Thanks ahead of time also to Dick Goddard for helping to promote the Happy Trails Summer picnic through Fox 8 and for spreading the word about our rescue efforts concerning farm animals. Dick is a true friend of the animals, and they are all very lucky to have him supporting the many animal rescue groups in the Northeast Ohio area.

JOINING THE HAPPY TRAILS DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEE

Happy Trails is growing in leaps and bounds, and is now at the point where we are in need of committees to help guide and direct our outreach efforts. The sanctuary is in the newer stages of organizing a Development Committee to plan and orchestrate the fundraisers and community events for the year. Everyone who feels they would like to participate in animal rescue more on the administrative end of things (as opposed to working directly with the animals or other labor-intensive volunteer work), is welcome to join the committee and put your organizational skills and business contacts to work for the good of the rescued farm animals. There is much time and effort that goes into planning any event, and we are hoping for the support of our community in our endeavors. We are asked to participate in far more community events than what we currently have volunteers available to staff booths. There are many ways you can become a part of Happy Trails as your time and personal schedules allow, and you can pick and choose what projects you would like to be involved with. For more information and to find out the time and location of our next meeting, please contact Joy Wagner at (330) 484-9537.

RECOGNIZING OUR EXTRA SPECIAL HARD-WORKING VOLUNTEERS

Every Sunday since the beginning of time (or so it seems — for at least the last two years), Alex Hale and Dick Zampini have been spending their Sunday’s helping to update the Happy Trails facilities and helping to care for the rescued farm animals.

Dick Zampini is not just a Sunday-kind-of-guy though. During the weeks he hauls hay, picks up supplies and helps to handle any other crises that may arise. Dick has helped pick up a baby lamb, hauled horse trailers, helped round up farm hogs, mended fencing, worked at the Browns football games fundraisers, ordered building materials and mended more fences.

Alex Hale also has helped to pick up a baby lamb, picked up and hauled hay and feed, regularly picks up donations from the Cuyahoga Falls Giant Eagle, and helped out faithfully at the Browns football games fundraisers.

On Sunday, these two go-getters do everything from major construction to shoveling out horse stalls, mending even more fences, moving sand and gravel, fixing shelters, unloading hay and straw, fixing stall gates, and they are always game for anything else that comes along! Their Sunday morning coffee and donuts at the farm are their fuel to get them started, and both the people and the animals at Happy Trails truly appreciate all their hard work and dedication!
I am amazed at many of the phone calls we get from people wanting to adopt a horse. Surely they can’t be “horse people”!

When someone calls to inquire about adopting a horse, we will ask, “What exactly are you looking for?”

It is inconceivable the amount of people who call a rescue group and make the following request: I’d like a trail-safe horse — one that’s good with kids or is good for beginners; one that is well-trained, traffic safe, and is healthy and sound (don’t want to deal with any health issues); no vices; don’t want a cribber; don’t want to have to work on loading — has to load well; has to be up-to-date on all shots and vet checked. And oh, I don’t want to spend hardly anything or pay very much for the horse — I just want a cheap horse. Ha!

Though many people like the idea of adopting a “rescued” horse, they inquire about adoption for the wrong reasons. I politely explain that you have just called a RESCUE group. In order for any animal to come into the Happy Trails rescue programs, including horses, they have to have been either abused, abandoned or neglected. In a few cases they were bound for slaughter or picked up from an auction where they would have went to the meat buyers. They have not been treated kindly and they have not been well cared for. In some circumstances we will take in an owner surrender, which is a topic covered in a neighboring article.

We are very honest with people about our rescued equines. If a horse is healthy, well-cared for, well-trained, beginner safe, traffic safe, and has no bad habits, chances are good that it is not in need of being rescued and that we will not be seeing it at Happy Trails.

Let me give you an idea of what’s been wrong with some of the horses that have been fortunate enough to come through the Happy Trails rescue program.

Health issues have included: broken hips and a broken pelvis, blown tendons, the neurological disease called EPM, the lack-of-muscle-tone disease in drafts called EPSM, hoof walls separated from the hoof itself, severe starvation, blindness caused from rocks coming up from driving in the streets as well as a blindness due to Uveitis, severe swaybacks from being ridden too young or from carrying too heavy of a person, severe foot issues, ringbone (a degenerative bone disease), painful arthritis, major knee injuries, heaves, anemia, and proud flesh covering major wounds. Be willing to know the rescued horse for it’s physical limitations — many can be wonderful walk/trot prospects after recovery if you don’t need to go galloping wildly down the trails.

Behavior problems have included: not being able to load, aggressiveness with other horses, and biting and kicking to name a few. Be willing to work around behavior flaws — many can be corrected with time and patience.

Training issues have included: horses that have been buggy or track horses but have never been actually ridden under saddle, horses that have been trained improperly, and horses that are green broke or have never been handled at all. Consider working with a certified trainer to get the rescued horse to your skill level (not Uncle Bob’s cousin’s friend’s sister who used to have a pony she trained when she was nine). It’s always worth it to have a professional horse trainer work with you and your horse. Your personal safety is worth every penny you put into the solid training of your new equine friend. It’s safer and it sure beats any hospital bills and injuries you may receive trying the do-it-yourself method when you feel you know way more about horses than what you really do.

And please don’t “bargain shop” or “make offers” to a rescue group! The money we receive for a horse adoption simply goes toward helping the next horse that’s in need of a home. Happy Trails sometimes spends thousands of dollars on the care of each of the rescued horses. If you feel you need to “bargain” with a sanctuary for the minimal $250 to $900 adoption fees for a horse, then you are trying to adopt one for all the wrong reasons.

When exploring adoption through a rescue group, look at all the horses available and then be realistic.

Be willing to work at some issues with your new equine friend. Be willing to take some time to build a relationship of trust.

Happy Trails does not pretend to be a training facility. We are a RESCUE group in the truest sense of the word. We help them to heal physically, and at the same time work on healing any broken hearts and hurt feelings that our equine companions may have toward us humans. It’s up to the new adoptive family to continue that work, and to provide the love and care and training they need.

The rescued horses at Happy Trails are all perfect in our eyes because they are survivors! If your dream of a perfect horse is what was originally described at the beginning of this article, consider buying a statue.

Does Happy Trails take in owner surrenders?

Many times unforeseen circumstances happen which cause horse owners to become unable to care for their equine companions or their other farm animals.

Happy Trails tries to reserve space in foster care for true emergencies, such as the death of a pet owner, sudden loss of job or income due to divorce or accidents, or the failing health of an animal caretaker or elderly owner.

We can counsel a pet owner who simply wants to give up their pet for personal reasons by offering suggestions on how to screen prospective homes, where to put up flyers and how to write ads for the newspapers. It is the responsibility of an owner to find their own pet a good, caring home. Happy Trails does our very best to help out in emergency situations concerning owner surrenders.

We also have a “Want-A-Pet” file to help people get in contact with each other who need help to place a farm animal or are looking to adopt a farm animal.
Senior Citizen Horses

Do you have a senior citizen horse that you have allowed to retire with you? Then bless your heart for being a caring, responsible pet owner who is seeing to the well-being of a retired equine friend!

Often situations arise where a horse owner cannot continue to care for their senior citizen horse, one that they have ridden and enjoyed spending time with for many years gone by. Retired horses, while not affording us the fun of riding or driving, often cost even more to care for than a younger, healthier horse that we can be-bopp with down the trail. It is also very difficult to watch our horse sweetie grow old, feeble, struggle to stand up in the mornings due to arthritis, and get slower with life in general.

If you're like me, you look at your horse with a tear in your eye and reminisce about the times you went to this Metro park or on that trail ride and would give anything to be able to do it all over again with your buddy. But you know in your heart that he or she doesn't have it in them any more. They can't see quite as well, their steps aren't as sure-footed, their once-straight back has started to sway, and their walk is much slower. But do we love them any less? If anything, we love them even more, because we know that the time and bonds between us and our senior citizen horse companion is something special — something that will always be there.

Many of us wouldn't even consider allowing our older horse to retire at another home — after all, no-one could possibly care for them as good as we can! We know their likes and dislikes and funny quirks and eating habits. And besides, they deserve the extra care and attention since they worked so hard for us for as long as we owned them. But who's kidding who — did we ever own them, or did we own each other?

We often get calls from individuals wanting help to place their older horse in another home so that they can replace them with a younger, fun, rideable horse. Sometimes these callers threaten to take their horses to auctions if Happy Trails cannot help. 99% of the old horses that are run through the auctions will surely end up with the meat buyers, and that is simply not fair to a horse that has worked so hard during it's life and has done so much for an ungrateful owner. We truly wish we could help each and every older horse that we are called about — find a good home — is this realistic? Most likely not. Look at the Happy Trails list of the Pasture Pals needing homes at any given time, and you'll see what I mean. Horses that are not rideable are much more difficult to place than horses that can "work" — their chances at a peaceful retirement with a caring family are slim at best.

Animals are not items to be thrown away or discarded when you are simply done "using" them. It makes me incredibly sad when we receive these calls from uncaring people simply wanting to "dump" their older horse and it's health problems on someone else because they are such an inconvenience and not useful to them any longer.

Let's together change this mentality, and encourage our friends and neighbors to continue to take care of their senior citizen animal friends. They have worked hard all their lives for us, and deserve to have a happy, peaceful retirement when the time comes. If they could talk directly to you, they would let you know that they are more than appreciative for that Bute tablet on the mornings that they are stiff and sore; and that they're grateful for that extra flake of straw to snooze on during the colder weather; and how they are happy when you soak their feed with warm water to make chewing easier since they can't get dentures; and for giving them that extra pat and hug at bedtime and telling them that you love them. They are sure that they gave you 110% of their all while they could. Let's give back to them the 110% that they have given us!

And when it is their time to go, let them go peacefully and kindly, and not have to experience the stress and confusion of being run through an auction and then suffer the unspeakable cruelty of being sent through a slaughter house.

Here is a list of caring horse owners who will love their old horses to the end, to give us all hope that not everyone has the "throw it away" mentality that we often see. We give a standing ovation to the following individuals who are continuing to care for their senior citizen equine companions during their twilight years:

- Abby and Deb Robinson: "Chance", a 26 year old Quarter horse gelding
- Joy Wagner: "Danny", a 24 year old Arabian gelding
- Phyllis and Jake Leonhardt: "Mr. Bill", 33 year old Standardbred gelding
- Pam Catlin: "Pony", a 29 year old Spotted Appy
- Susie Wiley: "Camry", a 25 year old Quarter horse mare
- Bob and Lynn Matson: "Dixie and Festus", a 24 year old Quarter horse mare and a 20 year old full-of-himself Shetland pony
- Char Scroggins: "Rocky", a 25 year old Quarter horse gelding
- Maureen Frederick: "Silver Baska", a 28 year old Arabian mare; "Athena" & "Darna", two 19 year old Arabian sisters
- Kathleen Varga: "Yngve", a 20 year old Fjord gelding
- Luanne and Don DeCrane: "Bonnie and Clyde", a 20 and 24 year old pair of Quarter horses
- Anne and John Keres: "Blondie", a 26 year old Palamino Quarter horse mare
- Angie Shaffer: "Rogue", a 25 year old Saddlebred gelding
- Annalise Spretino: "Kelly", 34 year old Quarter horse gelding
- Candi Bowan: "Dreyfuss", a 30-something Haflinger gelding

Unfortunately, due to limited space we were not able to list everyone who requested to be a part of our senior list — our apologies.

If your name is not on our list and you plan to allow your horse to retire in your care when it's time comes, give yourself a pat on the back and a round of applause, and go hug your horse and tell him or her just how lucky they are to have you for their guardian. Good for you for caring!
Welcome to Corona, the Amish Buggy Horse

Occasionally Happy Trails will receive a call from an Amish family requesting help to relocate a buggy horse that needs to retire. The Amish buggy horses are hard workers. They trot many miles every day to carry their families to town, to the blacksmiths, to go to the store, to visit a friend, and to go to church. Many Amish communities are located in beautiful scenic areas, but are situated in rather hilly terrain. The family buggy horses are their vehicles to get around, so just like the postman, the horses are out working daily in rain, sleet, snow and hot Summer sun.

Happy Trails recently accepted Corona, a 15 year old Standardbred mare into our Pasture Pal Program. She was being retired from being an Amish buggy horse after having been with her family for ten years. She was not able to trot the required distance needed any longer to keep her service valuable. Her red blood count was low and she was anemic. Corona is the sweetest, most lovable mare! She has been resting quietly as she regains her strength. She was a great deal underweight, had thrush, and is recovering from terrible ear infections. She was double-blanketed at Happy Trails to keep her warm and toasty — though her coat was long and shaggy, her undercoat had not properly grown in and being anemic hadn’t helped matters either.

These hard working equine who are often purchased by Amish families are ex-race horses. Most of the horses are Standardbreds — the breed used for racing by pulling a cart, so they are very well broke to the harness.

Happy Trails Farm Animal Sanctuary hopes to work more with the Amish community to give these horses the retirement homes they should have. After serving a family well for many years of its life, pulling heavy weight up and down steep hills, pounding the pavement in the extreme temperatures of both Summer and Winter, the faithful horse’s reward when it can no longer serve it’s owner to its fullest capacity should not be to be sent through a local auction to end up in the hands of the meat buyers for a slaughterhouse.

This scenario is normally what happens to the horses, and they are replaced with another horse from off the track. When the old horse is sold at an auction and is purchased by a meat dealer, they get to stand in the killer pens for the day until the sale is over, along with other horse who may be aggressive toward them and cause them further injuries. They are then loaded into very large stock trailers and shipped off to the slaughterhouse. One of the major horse slaughterhouses is located in Texas, and the unfortunate horses are shipped on the two to three day journey without food or water in the overcrowded trailers. Amazingly enough, this is legal! And though it isn’t a pretty picture to paint, it is honest and accurate.

Happy Trails does not buy these horses from their Amish owners, but we do agree to accept the horse into our rescue program and find it a home if the owner will allow us to help out.

Thanks to the Amish folks who have willingly surrendered their horses to allow them to live out their lives resting peacefully at a caring, loving home, and may God bless the people who have agreed to adopt these tired, hard working horses.

Corona is now available for adoption to an approved home, and she has already gained a good deal of weight. Proper nutrition has the anemia under control. Though she has never been ridden, she is doing excellent with her ground work and we believe she should be a wonderful trail horse prospect.

If you are interested in adopting a “Pasture Pal” (non-rideable) horse that needs a loving retirement home, please call us at (330) 296-5914.
I know we don’t have the space to mention all the wonderful adoptions that have taken place recently, but we would like to highlight at least some of their stories.

Hercules, a gentle giant Percheron draft gelding, won the hearts of Lisa and Jim Lambakis. He is settled in comfortably at his new home and has other horses for his companions!

Arabella, a sweet, Hackney mare, had been returned to the Happy Trails rescue program, and is now enjoying her second adoptive home with Victoria Carani where she has retired as a pasture buddy for another horse.

Zeus, the Percheron gelding, is in the process of being adopted and will be moving to his new home where he’ll have a large pasture and Isis the Standardbred for a friend! Dick Salzer fell head-over-heels for the big, lovable draft!

Hootie, a greyish male duck, is now the new companion for Hank, another duck rescued through Happy Trails. Both have been adopted by Becky Albright, volunteer and board member, and both ducks enjoy the multitude of creatures wandering about on Becky’s farm.

Camry, Annette Fisher’s senior citizen Quarter horse mare, is now happily living in Pennsylvania along with Baby Bopp (for those who remember the sweet, giant Belgian mare) at Susie Wiley’s. The two horses used to be best friends here at Happy Trails, and now have a chance at retirement together.

Dutchess, an adorable Standard-bred mare, found her permanent home with Joy Wagner. Dutchess is completely blind, but comfortable enough with her new mom to continue to ride! See the whole story on Dutchess on Page 12.

Duesie, (Royal Duesenburg) a handsome Standardbred gelding, found the love of his life when he met Cathy Allison. The two are now inseparable and go riding almost every day!

Joyce Godfrey was kind enough to adopt an assortment of chickens and ducks who were in need of lots of TLC. After a large rescue of 41 chickens, all have found wonderful homes! Thanks too to Donna Iacoboni of Medina who also adopted a good number of the chickens, ducks and also some geese.

Cassie, a sweet little black Cyuga female duck was adopted by Margo Bellar as friend for her lonely duck. The two have made a great match! Spot, a four day old lamb, came through the gates of Happy Trails. He was lucky enough to get adopted by Holly Ferrara of Ravenna! He is an absolute sweetheart!

Benny, a West African male Pygmy goat has now made himself quite at home with his new mama, Trinity Coontz. Lucky little Benny was adopted through Happy Trails thanks to the kind folks who cared about him at the Akron Zoo.

Many thanks to everyone who has adopted a rescued farm animal from Happy Trails! For a list of the animals that are available for adoption as of this printing (our list changes daily!) please see the adoption list on page 13 or visit our website at happytrailsfarm.org, for a more updated listing.
Behind The Scenes...

Here you see Joy the cow at one of her “glamour fittings”. Sharon Barnard (the one not wearing the veil) and Chris Cook (hiding out of camera range) began to gather glamorous outfits for Joy the cow who will be featured in “Glamour Shots With Joy The Cow” at the Happy Trails Summer Picnic & Fundraiser. Here Joy models one of her many glamorous outfits that she could dress up in for your special glamour shot! Many people think of glamour shots as making themselves glamorous and beautiful. This whimsical twist on glamour shots allows you to choose a special outfit for the cow so that she can look glamorous, and you get your photo taken with this bodacious bovine! You will be able to choose different themes: the wedding veil (shown above); the tropical cow with a large, flowery Hawaiian lei; the Bahama beach cow, with scuba goggles and a snorkel; the beauty pageant cow, with a glittering tiara and a “Miss Happy Trails” sash; the 70’s cow; and, well, let your imagination wander what other outfits there is for our glamourous cow! (Below) Alex Hale (the one not wearing the scuba gear) hugs Joy the cow as she happily licks up her nose for the camera, modeling the latest snorkel equipment!

On Wednesday, May 5th, K105FM’s very own remote disc jockey, “K-Man” (Andy Sitko), visited Happy Trails Farm Animal Sanctuary and hung out with our volunteers and rescued animals from 6am to 9am. As he talked on air to morning DJ’s, Maryann Graff and Doug James, K-Man tried to get the rooster to crow, the pig to oink, and the goose to honk...on cue! Yo right, they all said! The animals would wait until he was off the air to give their very best crows, oinks and honks! Pictured above (left to right) Dick Zampini, Shelby the Belgian draft horse, Abby Robinson, Zeus the goose being held by Annette Fisher, Maggie Godfrey and Samantha the dog, Andy Sitko “K-Man” from K105, and Jen and Rachel Salzer. Many thanks to K105 for not only the remote broadcast, but for including Happy Trails as part of their Sunday morning Forum Program, which features nonprofit organizations from 7am to 7:30am. Happy Trails appreciates your support — you guys are great!

Don’t forget:
Always check your shampoo and cosmetic products for the important disclaimer: NOT TESTED ON ANIMALS!
New Faces...

“Junebug”, a sweet little girl piggy went into Happy Trails foster care program with her new foster parents, Nancy and Chuck Conring. How could you foster such a sweet little pig and not adopt her? Nancy and Chuck couldn’t figure that one out either, so yep (you guessed it), Nancy and Chuck are now the proud new parents of a precious little pot belly pig!

Clyde, a lovable old Quarter horse gelding, had been starved for the second time in his life. The vet suggested that Clyde needed to gain about 200 lbs. when we accepted him into our equine rescue program. Thanks to Mary Verhoff of Lone Pine Farm Tack in Alliance for being such a wonderful foster mama for our boy Clyde. If you are interested in adopting Clyde, he is between 22-25 years old, deals with arthritis, and is slowly recovering from malnutrition. He may be ridable for kids as he continues to gain weight and regain his strength.

Rocky, a large Percheron colt yearling, is a big baby according to his foster mom, Joy Wagner. Rocky is going to make someone a wonderful backyard pet, and has potential to be a great walk/trot backyard trail kind-of-guy! He is great with other horses and loves attention! Are there any Percheron lovers out there interested in adopting a big baby?

Spring is here!

This little guy, along with two of his buddies, was in foster care a whole two weeks before they found their permanent home! Thanks to Nancy and Chuck Conring, again, for fostering the goat family!

The warm, breezy Spring day was just perfect for these three piggy friends who were rooting around the yard at the sanctuary. The pink pig (shown back near the duck and chicken enclosure) is Dennis, in the center is Mr. Bojangles, and on the right is Hogan. In front of them all is part of a flower garden with our animal statue of St. Francis.

Don’t try this at home...

Hogan the pig was a good sport about allowing us to set a tiny, “mini” saddle on his back for a photo opportunity. Though the saddle was almost too small for a Barbie doll, Hogan wore his new apparel proudly! He also likes the Western look on himself as opposed to the English saddles!

Good-bye to snow!

One thing we won’t miss this Summer — all the snow and ice we got to trudge through during the long Winter! Shelby never seemed to mind it as much as we did!
The Story of Dutchess

Dutchess, a completely blind Standardbred mare, was turned down for help from Happy Trails three times before being accepted into our equine rescue program. Someone had purchased the horse at the Sugarcreek Auction where Dutchess was being bid on by the meat buyers. This kind soul purchased Dutchess, but then didn’t know what to do with her. Happy Trails was overflowing with horse rescues at the time, and no foster homes were available. We sadly said that we couldn’t help, but gave them the name of someone who might.

Dutchess ended up with Shannon and Scott Alexander of Cuyahoga Falls. Though the Alexander’s were planning on moving out of state, they were determined to try very hard to find a home for Dutchess before they left. No caring home surfaced for the sweet, lovable, blind horse. Could we possibly take her for them? Still Happy Trails was full — we were very sorry but we still could not help.

Time quickly came for them to move, and Shannon again asked if Happy Trails could take the horse. Again we had to decline help but tried to offer suggestions. Shannon wouldn’t give up trying to find Dutchess a home, and excitedly let me know one day that she thought she had found the horse a home. Sadly once again Shannon called Happy Trails — her “good home” for Dutchess was not as it appeared, and Shannon learned that the horse might be once again sent to the slaughterhouse auction. Could we help?

Happy Trails still didn’t have room, so we did what we always do...we made room. Dutchess was brought to Happy Trails one very cold Winter day, and was an absolute love to work with.

Her blindness (in both eyes) is caused by Uveitis, a degenerative eye disease that causes complete blindness and also causes the eye to recede back into the hollow of the eye socket. This can create unsanitary conditions and attract flies, debris, and can result in painful eye infections. Dr. Tuckerman of Aurora Equine Specialty Hospital, recommended having both of Dutchess’ eyes removed to prevent further pain and complication. Dutchess was such a trooper! She trusted us enough to load calmly into the horse trailer for the ride up to the hospital, where she stayed for five days, then back to Happy Trails for recovery. Only one eye, the worst one, was removed at this time. She wore a racing mask with protective eye shields to prevent further trauma as her eye healed.

As Dutchess was recovering from surgery, a kind and caring person began to bond with her and fell head over heels for this trusting, personable blind horse. Joy Wagner, a special advisor to Happy Trails, began to work with Dutchess here at the sanctuary, and like the rest of us, fell in love with this beautiful creature. Joy waited until Dutchess healed completely, then took her home to be a part of her family. Dutchess got her dream — to be adopted by someone who would love her inspite of her handicap and not send her back through the meat auction!

Today Dutchess is riding again! Dutchess rides Western and is very confident with her blindness. She both walks and trots, and has learned to maneuver her way around her new property. Joy and Dutchess are learning together the special needs of a blind horse. Dutchess is also thoroughly enjoying the fact that Joy is a Certified Equine Massage Therapist — how lucky can a horse get?

It always amazes me the wonderful homes that we often find for the rescued horses. Their lives can completely turn around with one phone call or one visit! Everyone who has met Dutchess is very glad that she became a part of Happy Trails! To read a more detailed story of Dutchess, check out the Beacon Journal article by Connie Bloom on our website at happytrailsfarm.org.

If you need the services of a Certified Equine Massage Therapist, give Joy a call at (330) 484-9537.
ANIMAL ADOPTIONS

To adopt a farm animal from Happy Trails, you would first fill out an adoption application. An adoption counselor then visits the new home to assure a safe environment, proper shelter, and an exercise area is provided for the farm animal being adopted. Each animal has its own set of adoption requirements and must be adopted as a pet — the rescued animals are not allowed to be used as food production or for breeding purposes. Barbed wire fencing is never approved. All animals go to their new home with complete medical records and are up to date on vaccinations, worming, and are spayed or neutered when appropriate. For more information, call Happy Trails at (330) 296-5914.

Horses Needing Homes

RIDEABLE PROGRAM: Horses placed in our “Rideable Program” are physically able to ride within its listed limitation. We explain their condition and any medical concerns. Though a horse may be in our “Rideable Program”, it does not necessarily mean they are trained for your particular needs. Happy Trails is not a training facility — we are a rescue group. We do our best to access the temperament and talents of each horse.

Many Chickens And Ducks Came To Happy Trails After A Fire At A Residence In Ravenna

A total of 41 chickens and 12 ducks were displaced after a fire at the home of their owner in Ravenna. The lucky chickens have all been placed in caring homes, but there are still a few ducks needing a loving family. If you have room in your heart and home for a pretty pair of Muscovies, a beautiful pair of Blue Swedish, or a white mixed breed female with a red mask, give us a call at (330) 296-5914.

Requirements to adopt a duck include that they have a predator-safe shelter at night and can be free-range in the yard much of the day or else have a large exercise area. Also, they are not allowed to be dumped out on an open pond — unfortunately all this does is feed the local wildlife, such as fox, raccoons, mink, and coyotes. The ducks would prefer that they are not used as feed, and so would we!

Ducks need to be fed a commercial duck pellet to assure that they will receive the proper vitamins and nutrients needed for our feathered friends, and being a duck, they prefer to have a small pond or pool to play in. Always make sure to pick up your duck and chicken eggs so you’re not making even more ducks and chickens that will need to find homes or overcrowd your current fowl population! Be assured that we always have plenty of chickens, ducks and geese in need of homes to go around for everybody, so there’s no need to make more of them!

A special thank you goes out to everyone who sent in donations honoring a friend or relative who has passed away, and to the families who have so kindly requested that donations be made to Happy Trails in memory of their loved one.

Many thanks also to those who have sent memorials honoring a pet who has crossed the Rainbow Bridge. What better way to remember your pet or a friend’s pet than by helping another animal in need in their memory?

Memorials are very much appreciated and Happy Trails is honored to have the rescued animals helped in this way. Our thoughts and prayers are with all the families who have lost someone close.

Heaven’s Trail: Pet Cemetery Update

Happy Trails has always attended to the needs of the souls entrusted to people who dedicate their labors to the welfare of the abused, neglected or abandoned animals at the sanctuary. This includes the living and those that have passed through the grounds of the sanctuary and on to Heaven’s Trail. Last Fall after the Salzer family undertook the cleaning and design of the pet cemetery located toward the back of the sanctuary property, a solemn ceremony of dedication of the site and those that rest there (as well as others who rest elsewhere yet dwell in our hearts and memories) was held. As Fall turned to Winter and Christmas arrived, the cemetery was bedecked with floral tributes, ribbons, and even Christmas trees. Snowfall only added to the visual beauty and a spirit of peaceful rest greeted those who wandered into the woods on a snowy evening.

But the snow and cold has given way to Spring. And with it the Salzers again have returned to the site. Spring flowers and Easter decor decorate the grounds. These will remain until mid-April. Then the old section of Heaven’s Trail will be cleared for Summer flowers and general care. As this goes on the main project for the Salzers is the establishment of phase two of Heaven’s Trail. Due to the need for an area dedicated for the rest of larger animals, more space must be cleared. The projected work is to clear more land, allow for a roadway into this section, and placement of more floral tributes. Also the Salzers plan to establish a prayer-meditation garden. In it Dick Salzer will create a memorial wall featuring pictures of animals that do not rest within Heaven’s Trail but will always be a part of Happy Trails. And the family plans to create a memorial stone for this section as well.

It is the hope of the Salzers that the weather will cooperate and allow the work to be completed by Memorial Day. In any event the site will be decked out and ready to go on June 27th for the Summer picnic at Happy Trails. On this day a rededication of the old section and a dedication of the new phase will be held. Reverend John Fisk will conduct a Native American service sure to bring tears to your eyes and joy to your heart. Plan to join us for this very special and moving experience at 3:30p.m. the day of the picnic.

So if you visit the sanctuary to work, pet, support or just say hello, take the few minutes it takes to walk back to Heaven’s Trail. The walk will do your body good. But the stop and visit experience within Heaven’s Trail will do your heart and spirit good.

The Story of Isis...by Isis
(As told to her new mom, Rachel Salzer)

Dear Readers of “Happy Tales”,

Everybody deserves a second chance. I got mine two years ago at the Mount Hope horse auctions. I was destined to be sold to the meat buyers for slaughter. It’s not that I was a bad horse, old or ill. And I certainly did not deserve to die. But I was an injured cart-racing horse that was no longer making money for my former owners. It was more profitable for them to sell me for meat than to keep me going and let me live out my life.

Lucky for me Happy Trails had decided to travel to the auctions that weekend. They were out to bid against the meat buyers and save as many horses as they could. Happy Trails had obtained sponsors (my girl was one of them) to pay for the cost of the bids. They had trailers waiting. And then the auctions began. I was paraded through the auction block, and the bidding commenced.

Happy Trails bid for me, and won! They saved my life. I began my journey to a new and happier adventure with a brand new name, Isis. I was named after the ancient Egyptian goddess of love, home, and joy. My girl picked my new name. I traveled to a foster home that helped Happy Trails give me the care that I needed. I was seen by a vet, received proper feed and all the hay I could eat (and trust me that’s a lot of hay). They even worked on healing my badly torn up legs. At the auction my legs were so raw they actually bled. But with proper care and medicine they began to heal.

When my foster home could no longer care for me I returned to the sanctuary. I joined several other horses that had also been saved that weekend. My care continued, all the while I was building strength. That summer I began giving rides to volunteers to grow stronger and work my legs. I had several inquiries into adopting me. All of the people were nice, although I was not always so nice in return. I usually pinned my ears or tried to bite them, sometimes both. It’s just me — it’s how I act toward almost everyone (except my girl).

Then Winter came, and horse adoptions slow down with the cold months. I prepared to spend my first winter with Happy Trails. The good food and hay continued, as well as the exercise rides as my legs were still in the process of healing. Spring came and I marked one year since my rescue at Mount Hope.

Spring turned to Summer, and again several more people showed an interest in adopting me. But every time, something would happen and I would end up staying at the sanctuary. It was ok, I liked it there. But I was ready to call someone my own, and I had someone in mind, my girl. I wanted to have a new barn to live in, and someone to ride me every day. As summer turned into fall once again, I prepared myself for another long Winter at Happy Trails. My wish was still unanswered.

Then I got my miracle. The girl that originally sponsored my auction bid decided to make me hers. I was very happy because I would finally have a new place I could call home, and a new field to graze in, and more treats than I would know what to do with. She said she would spoil me to no end. Her family supported the decision, even to the point of relocating so I would have plenty of pasture to call my own.

Two years after being a survivor, I am saying farewell to the grounds of Happy Trails and hello to my new barn and family. My legs are almost completely healed, although they still do gather proud flesh around the wounds. (Proud flesh is a thick, tough skin that must be peeled away.) I don’t like having this done, but I try to be good (most of the time). I am glad to have had the chance to have called Happy Trails my home for the past two years.

But at my new home my girl will take me on rides through the woods, and brush me, and do all the fun things that horses like. I will be living in a new barn, designed with a goddess in mind. And the treats will never end.

Thanks to Happy Trails for my second chance at life. And as a story about a goddess is close to a story about a princess, this goddess will live happily ever after.

One lucky horse, ISIS...

Russ Fisher. His constantly wagging tail is missed by everyone.

The Name Game

Though Happy Trails assigns each farm animal that is accepted into our rescue program an animal intake number, we provide them with a name that seems best suited for them also. We try to think of something unique; something that will make a prospective pet owner fall in love with that particular animal because their name is just sooooo cute or different!

Though some animals come with names already, we offer the farm animal a new lease on life — a second chance to find peace, happiness, care and love. So why not give them a new name to go with their new beginning?

However, after rescuing what feels like a million animals, sometimes our thinking caps concerning attractive and cutey names runs out of steam.

May we borrow some of the unique and funny names that you have named your pets? Write to us or email us and let us know of the one-of-a-kind names you've given your own pets, so that we have some interesting ideas to name any new animal faces that will be coming to Happy Trails. We'll try to publish some of the funnier or more original ones in the next newsletter.

We're not doing too badly ourselves coming up with adorable names. Not too many people have a beautiful 900 lb. farm hog named Mrs. Beasley, a wicked wicked Leghorn rooster named Earl, a gorgeous dark bay Standardbred mare named Sequoia, a chubby pot belly pig named Cleopatra, or a baby lamb named Shakespear.

Follow Up

Remember Tundra, the big five year old Belgian gelding that Happy Trails picked up from the Mid-Ohio Draft Horse Auction in Mt. Hope, Ohio? He was going to the meat buyers late in the day on a Friday two years ago, and that weekend Happy Trails purchased nine horses that would have otherwise ended up at the slaughterhouse. Thanks to Josephine Wardle who sponsored an auction bid for a very lucky horse. Tundra was purchased and saved from the kill pen.

While Tundra was in foster care, he had a severe colic and was sent to Ohio State Veterinary University for emergency surgery. Tundra amazingly enough came through with flying colors, was adopted by his foster family, Shannon and Scott Alexander, and has since moved to a beautiful pasture in West Virginia this past January. Here are some photos of a fat and happy Tundra at his new home!

How did Madonna Get Her Name?

When Happy Trails handled a rescue concerning the neglect of a female pot belly, we discovered a star! We arrived to find a severely overweight piggy with hooves so long that they had curled up and twisted — her hooves measured eight inches long. Every time she attempted to walk the misshapen appendages would cruelly poke her in the face, barely missing her eyes.

We coaxed her into the middle of a large comforter, and four of us gently picked her up and set her into the van. We placed her on a mound of soft blankets, pillows, sheets and comforters. This made her deliriously happy, and for the entire ride back to the sanctuary, she excitedly shredded all the brightly colored materials. She loved the blankets and comforters and was quite fascinated with them. She would rip the sheets and other material into shreds, then attempt to make herself a nest in the van.

So enamored with all the material was she, that we felt it was only fitting to name her Madonna — after all, she was quite the “material” girl!!!

Madonna is still available for adoption (along with her friend Rosie Pig). Madonna is on an antiinflammatory due to her arthritis, and she has difficulty walking. She had been fed dog food instead of the proper diet of commercial pot belly food needed to satisfy the nutritional needs of a pot belly pig, and she had become severely overweight. She is an absolute sweetheart and loves to be petted and hugged and have her belly rubbed!! If you could help to give Madonna and Rosie (her black and white pot belly pig friend rescued from a starvation situation), or any of the other piggys a proper home, or would like to know the housing requirements for a pot belly pig, please give us a call at (330) 296-5914.

Hearts & Paws Rescue Group Needs Foster Homes For Dogs & Cats

Hearts & Paws is a wonderful dog and cat rescue group that has worked hand in hand with Happy Trails for quite a while. They are always in need of loving, caring foster homes for dogs, puppies, cats, and kittens. If you do not have the facilities to foster a farm animal for Happy Trails, maybe you would consider opening your heart and your home as a foster parent for a homeless dog or an abandoned kitten until it can be placed with a permanent family. It will do your spirit good to have played such an important role in the life of a rescued animal, and dogs and cats are admittedly easier to foster than a horse, cow or farm hog — here at Happy Trails we understand that! For more information on either adopting a cat or dog or being a foster parent, call (330) 665-9941.
