

At the end of September, as the season started to wind down in Mykonos for the year - we took a group of advisors from around the country to visit Kensho Ornos and Pсарou beach and see the mystique of Mykonos. Upon arriving in Athens, Original Senses transferred us to the new Four Seasons Astir Palace for a tour of this re-imagined icon and lunch overlooking the sea. After lunch we headed back to the airport to relax in the Aegean lounge before a 25 min flight over to Mykonos.

Kensho Psarou beach is a new property in Mykonos and has quickly established itself as the place to be on the chicest island in the Cyclades. Well known all over the world as a playground for the richest and most famous, there is much more to Mykonos than first meets the eye. Psarou Beach is known as the best on the island, it is well protected from the wind, has perfect white sand as far as you can see, the water is perfectly shallow forever and all is calm. Perched at the end of the beach and protected behind and beside by a rocky hillside, Kensho is poised for incredible water views and perfect vibes. The philosophy of Kensho is derived from the word itself, a Japanese Zen term which loosely translates into "seeing into one's true nature" and the property takes inspiration from the name in many ways.

Although in Mykonos you can party all day, Kensho has a perfect mix of with the cosmopolitan party vibe ensconced in a wrap of healing luxury, with all the ingredients that will help you make the most out of your time on the island. This property (and Mykonos itself) is alive with a distinct personality, it is a place to come in search of something and leave having discovered more about yourself.
