Bringing Biblical Principles of Governance

"The Time is Up"

Greetings Friends,

On December 4, 2018, I was in the Knesset – the Israeli Parliament – in Jerusalem, as we were beginning a Bible study, the Schindler Society, that Rosemary and I co-sponsor with Israel365, Rabbi Tuly Weiz and Rabbi Yehuda Glick.

Seated next to me was a well-known Orthodox Jewish lecturer in Israel – AnaRina Heymann. I turned to her and said, “I have just left Skyline Church.” She said, “I have just left the City of David.” (She served as Outreach Coordinator at this remarkable archaeological site adjacent to the Temple Mount.)

I said, “I have founded ‘Well Versed.’” She responded, “I have founded ‘Align with Zion.’”

I looked at her and said with seriousness, “I think the time is short.” With not even a seconds hesitation, she looked at me with even more seriousness said...

“The time is up.”

I have not been able to get that phrase – “the time is up” – out of my mind.

I begin this podcast interview with AnaRina Heymann Kreisman (we add Kreisman because she just got married) asking her what she meant by “the time is up.”

Listen to AnaRina. My wife listens teaching continuously. Rosemary thinks AnaRina is one of the greatest teachers.

When you financially partner with us, we often times look for a special gift with which to bless you, our supporters. Sometimes it is a book. Last month it was the Jewish prayer shawls (tallits). But this month, I am extremely excited about the gift we would like to share with you.

As I stated, I don't like any items on my hands, say, even a ring or a watch (although I wear them). But for two years I have joyously worn the world's smallest Bible, the Nano Bible, which has the entire Old Testament, the Tanakh, carved into a tiny stone.
