Dear friends in Sport Integrity,

Sport prepares to resume its activities after two months of lockdown.

It will not happen everywhere, but only in some countries.

Health authorities, medical experts and sporting organisations are now working together, at fast pace, to ensure that all health and safety requirements are met, and athletes, coaches and technical staff can feel confident.

We are all looking forward to enjoying the sports we love, in real time, life. If not in the sporting grounds, then, at least, on our TV screens and smart phones.

Nothing can be taken for granted, Governments warn. Every decision may still be reversed, if circumstances so impose. Health comes first.

But, with or without fans in the stands, competitive sports are definitely coming back.

In most cases, the precise dates are still undecided, but that's the trend. And what a positive trend it is!

Let's hope everything goes well!

In the meantime, Sport continues sending messages of solidarity, hope and confidence.

And the same is being done by SIGA, our Members and our Champions, who have sent powerful messages today to all young people and children who have been in home-confinement for so long, and all frontline workers, including doctors and nurses, the police, journalists, supermarket employees and cleaning workers and to all those anonymous heroes to whom we owe so much.

Today's #BePositive edition will shine a light on some of those positive news stories. We wish you a pleasant reading and hope they will continue to inspire you!
