

A Message of Love to Calm the Grieving Heart

We come to you in peace with a message of love. We come from beyond and share with you information that will assist you within the grieving process.

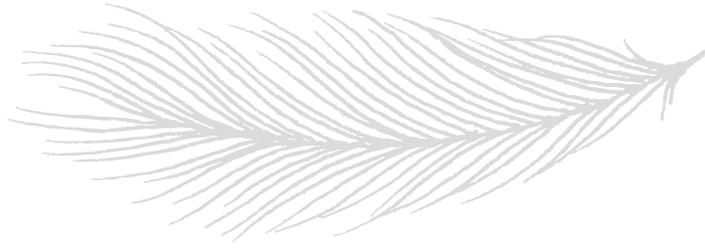

There is nothing that can repair a grieving heart sooner than the knowing the loved one who has departed will never cease to exist. The loved one, the love you have shared is eternal. The love you have shared is infinite, the love you share is All That Is.

You have been entrusted to hold a piece of this loved one near and dear within your heart. This loved one shall continue to comfort you during this time in which you grieve for that which has been lost. The grief in itself is in magnitude to the love that was shared, the love that continually will exist within the hearts of those who cherish each other.

The hearts continue to beat as one. They are connected through and beyond the confines of time and space. The loved one is still capable of hearing anything you wish to share, anything that may remain unspoken, anything that may need to be expressed, whether it be the tenderness of a message of love or the truth that one feels was not communicated properly during the transitional period.

The love that exists eternal is yours to cherish. It is yours to hold near and dear to the heart. You are entrusted with this love to continue to nurture, and to grow, and to know that you too shall be cherished whenever it is time for you to rejoin this transitional state from the body to the continual evolution of the infinite beingness.

The realm of possibility is open in how you choose to move forth. There is a period in which you may feel you are challenged to feel the magnitude of the loss, the magnitude of the aloneness you may feel without this presence within your daily life. We can assure you that the connection still exists, and you are connected together permanently.

Your loved one will continue to visit you as often as they are called upon. They are here to assist you within the grieving process, for it is their intent that you continue to feel supported during this difficult moment within life.

The transition of death may be a natural progression of a life that has completed its mission upon the earth. It may feel the mission may have been ended abruptly. It may feel the mission included much suffering. It may feel the mission is incomplete. However, we can assure you no one departs without knowing that the completion has relevance to each unique soul experience.

This is not a topic that is communicated lightly. The information that has been provided will assist you in understanding there is much more than is commonly expressed during the death process.

Know that you are loved, that you are encompassed within the wings of angels who protect you and guide you through the darkest of days and the darkest of nights. These angels are available to you at any moment in which you need them. Communicate to them and they will reveal themselves to you.

The structure of love is indivisible. It is a bond that can never be broken.

Walk forth in peace and in love and know you shall forever be held in the heart of God.

Walk forth in peace and know you and your loved one are forever intertwined as an expression of the love and the will of God.

And so it is.

Amen.