

Director's Notes

Hope is the cornerstone of the music of John Kander and Fred Ebb. As the title song states no matter what happens the world keeps turning and life continues. The musical message is "I'm still here" Sometimes that message is given in triumph and sometimes with a bowed head, but it is always sung by a survivor.

Just as the music of Kander and Ebb is the result of a collaboration, tonight's performance a true collaboration. The five singer/actors performing have truly collaborated to present an extraordinary evening of entertainment. These performers, in the true spirit of collaboration, have provided each other the guidance, support, criticism and advice necessary to bring about their best performances. Members of the crew, our theatre family and friends have responded with the quiet competence that is the hallmark of a FSLT production staff. A special thanks must be given to George Mann for his expert guidance over several rough spots at a time when he was preparing his own production. Tonight brings the final collaboration as you, the audience and we, the theatre folk, share these moments of entertainment. Jim Moody

And some times you're sad
But the world goes 'Round and 'round and 'round and 'round. "
