BACKGROUND

Collaborative Regional Workshop
"Cooperation and Integration, the Path to Government Procurement Development in the Caribbean"
12th – 13th April 2011

1. Background

The Inter-American Network on Government Procurement (INGP) is an initiative of the countries of the Americas supported by the Organization of American States (OAS). The INGP is comprised of all Latin American and Caribbean OAS’ Member States and was established as a vehicle for horizontal cooperation, to promote and maintain spaces for analysis, mutual knowledge sharing, technical cooperation, training and exchange of experiences among the member institutions of the Network with the goal to contribute to the strengthening of the government procurement systems and practices in the region. The IGPN provides linkages among governments, organizations and other institution related to public procurement and, through different initiatives, receives support from the Organization of American States, the Inter-American Development Bank, the Multilateral Investment Fund of the IDB and the International Development Research Center.

At the annual Conference of the INGP in Peru in October 2010, it was suggested that Jamaica host a regional workshop with the aim of strengthening the Caribbean participation in the Network and supporting the development of government procurement in the Caribbean.

The Commonwealth Public Procurement Network (CPPN) is an initiative of the Commonwealth Secretariat involving countries of the British Commonwealth. The Secretariat has taken steps towards the establishment of a Caribbean branch of the CPPN.

The Caribbean Community (CARICOM) is a regional integration movement of fifteen independent Caribbean States which, in its current form- the CARICOM Single Market- was established under the 2001 Revised Treaty of Chaguaramas. The main administrative body for the Caribbean Community is the CARICOM Secretariat. The states have committed to the full establishment of the CARICOM Single Market and Economy (CSME). CARICOM is in the process of formulating a regional public procurement agreement under the CSME.

The administrations of the different international organizations involved have agreed to cooperate in hosting a collaborative regional workshop in Jamaica so as to make the most efficient use of the financial resources available to support government procurement in the Caribbean region. The valuable effort currently lead by CARICOM to achieve consensus on a Framework Regional Integration Policy on Public Procurement (FRIP), will be reinforced by the presentations and exchanges planned for the government procurement workshop that will take place on April 12th - 13th, 2011. CARICOM will have its technical meeting on April 14th and 15th following the workshop.
2. Date and Venue

The workshop “Cooperation and Integration, the way to Government Procurement Development in the Caribbean”, will take place on April 12-13, 2011 at the Ritz Carlton in Montego Bay, Jamaica.

3. Objectives

- Exchange of experiences and lessons learned among countries of the Latina America and Caribbean region.
- Present and review current regional initiatives aimed at supporting the Caribbean countries in procurement modernization.
- Develop areas of common interests and forge a working alliance between the CPPN and IGPN.
- To expose CARICOM Member States to international best practice on the technical areas included in the scope of the FRIP with the objective of CARICOM achieving consensus on that regional policy.

4. Participants

Participants will include government officials in charge of the highest ranking national institutions in Caribbean countries who are responsible for regulating, managing and modernizing government procurement systems. Senior officials from trade ministries who are contributing to the development of public procurement policy will also participate. Public procurement experts, representatives from stakeholder institutions and sponsoring agencies, will make key presentations which will set the tone for discussion over the two-day workshop.

5. Organization and Sponsorship

The workshop is being hosted by the Government of Jamaica, through the Ministry of Finance, and is jointly organized by the Organization of American States, the Commonwealth Secretariat, the Inter-American Development Bank and the CARICOM Secretariat.

<td>1. ICT’s and Government Procurement</td>
<td>▪ Information and Communication Technologies (ICTs) have already shown the potential to transform the functioning of the public administration. Among the numerous areas of government where technology can have an impact, procurement is recognized to be the one benefitting the most. Transparency, efficiency and equal access are concepts frequently associated with ICTs and constitute the foundation of a modern government procurement system. This panel will examine some of the achievements, the challenges faced and the lessons learned when incorporating information and communication technologies into the activity of procuring for the public sector.</td>
