MIDWEST RACE CLASS NARRATIVE ACTION

OHIO

Racial resentment, wrapped in faux economic populism, has long proven critical to enticing white voters in the Midwest and beyond. Meanwhile people of color, young people and many women are blocked from the political process and left feeling like outsiders by narratives that stay silent on fundamental human rights or downgrade them to special interests. In response, progressive organizations in MI, MN, MO, OH, PA and WI came together to apply and extend the original Race Class Narrative (RCN) Project<sup>1</sup> in order to uncover effective ways of persuading the middle and mobilizing a justifiably disenchanted base with a narrative rooted in race, class and gender tailored to each particular state context. This brief outlines key insights and messaging recommendations for Ohio based on research done there and with demographic oversamples across states.<sup>2</sup>

Core Insights

- Effective messages follow a set order: shared value, problem, solution. In contrast, leading with problems makes our solutions seem less credible. It primes people's understandable cynicism and reluctance to get involved.
- For narratives and distinct wording choices to work, they must be heard over and over again which requires that people be willing to repeat them. Messages about enacting solutions and promoting a desirable future garner greater enthusiasm from our base and prove more persuasive to the middle than those centered on addressing problems. In Ohio, focus group participants spoke of desire to hear about solutions as they felt state leaders tended toward just articulating problems.
- Speak about race, class and gender as interconnected: Describe the shared values that exist across these lines. Call out the ways our opposition divides us by race and gender or shames and blames particular groups in order to distract us while they hand kickbacks to the richest 1% and keep us from uniting for our economic wellbeing.
- Messages about division and scapegoating, as opposed to just financial concerns, are powerful ways to connect the targeted harms done to particular groups to the financial hardships familiar to many. However, it's vital to guard against claims that we are the ones sowing discord. We do this by first naming what we hold in common and, when we describe our solutions, including explicit calls for cross racial solidarity to make this a place where fairness, freedom and prosperity are for all of us, no exceptions.

Top Rated Ohio Narratives<sup>3</sup>

OHIO'S STRENGTH

No matter where we come from or what our color, most of us work hard for our families. For this to be a place where everyone can thrive, we cannot let a powerful few divide us based on what we look like, where we come from, or how much money we have, hoping we'll look the other way while they take from working people to hand kickbacks to the richest 1%. We need to join together with people from all walks of life to fight for our future, just like we won better wages, safer workplaces, and civil rights in our past. It is time for us to pick new leaders who reflect the very best of every kind of Ohioan. Together, we can make this a place where a better future is for everyone, no exceptions.

RACE, CLASS AND GENDER

Most of us work hard for our families no matter what we look like or where we come from. But today, when a powerful few divide us against each other, they block our efforts to ensure a fair return on our work and paid time to care for our families, affordable childcare for our kids and quality healthcare for our loved ones. By joining together to rewrite the rules, we can ensure every one of us, whether we're women or men, young or old, White or Black, can care for our families, have our voices heard and our rights respected.

Words that Work

Embrace	Replace	Explanation
Certain politicians; a handful of CEOs; some corporations	Politicians; CEOs; corporations; the wealthy	Respondents reject absolutes, even implied ones.
[Naming villains] Richest 1%	Billionaires; Top 1%	Persuadable and base voters are fairly equal in their disapproval of either billionaires or the richest 1% but the latter helpfully alienates the opposition.
[Naming goal] Move toward greater equality	Come together and make things better	Persuadable and base voters are more motivated by explicit calls for equality than unity and improvement.
Join together for/ represent/make things better...in Ohio	Join together for/ represent/make things better...in America	Persuadable voters are more optimistic about and motivated for positive change at the state, not national, level.
Unions of working people	Labor unions	Despite greater familiarity of “Labor Unions,” Unions of Working People center the members and thus garner greater approval.
Ensure people’s voting rights by allowing for election day registration and automatic voter registration	Modernize Ohio’s voting and registration laws to make our elections secure and accessible	While persuasive to the middle, arguing for “secure” elections wins favor from the opposition. This likely indicates it is helping their side increase support from the middle for suppressive measures dressed up as election reforms.

This holds true for respondents who are immigrants themselves.
To make life better for working people we need to invest in education, create better paying jobs, and make healthcare more affordable for White, Black, and Brown people struggling to make ends meet	To make life better for working people we need to make things right for those who are being harmed the most today, especially African Americans and immigrants<sup>5</sup>	A race class narrative approach, that builds toward cross racial solidarity, is more motivating and persuasive than one rooted in ideas of racial repair.

Embrace	Replace	Explanation
Ensuring women and men are equal in our society is largely a matter of men changing how they treat the women in their lives	Ensuring women and men are equal in our society is largely a matter of women changing what they expect of men in their lives	Focusing on men’s behavior and how it should evolve elicited strong agreement and more productive engagement on gender equity.

3. Messages have been adapted from what was dial tested in order to incorporate learnings from moment to moment responses.
4. Policies with asterisks (*) were split-sampled in order to perform wording experiments; the more effective formulations appear here.
5. This finding came from surveys conducted in PA, WI, and MI.
