

What would a community-based crisis response look like?

The City of Toronto is looking to re-imagine ways of responding to crisis calls that are collaborative, innovative and grounded in community needs and desires. To do this, the City wants to understand your priorities for what a community-based crisis response could look like.

Complete the online survey before November 9, 2020.