

Team Archives – Former collaborators

AL-BARE, Randa – Applied Politics Intern

Randa Al-Bare is a master's degree student in applied political studies at the University of Sherbrooke. She holds a master's degree in human resources management. Her work focuses on gender policy and feminism in Africa. Ms. Al-Bare's other research interests include women's participation in political life, as well as women's rights in Africa. As part of her master's degree, she studies the research community's participation in democratic consultation bodies in Québec and Canada.

BÉRUBÉ, Maxime – Project SOMEONE Collaborator

Maxime Bérubé is an SSHRC Postdoctoral Fellow at Concordia University and University of Waterloo, working on Project SOMEONE with the UNESCO Chair for the Prevention of Violent Radicalization and Extremism (UNESCO-PREV Chair) to create social education strategies to prevent radicalization and violent extremism. He has a doctorate in criminology from the University of Montréal, where he also works as a lecturer. Terrorism, counterterrorism, intelligence and investigation strategies are among the topics he specializes in. Mr. Bérubé's dissertation explores the diversity of jihadist influence activities, looking at an extensive sample of English-language videos. He is Co-Editor of a book titled Délinquance et innovation [Delinquency and

Innovation] and his research interests focus on influence activities leading to violence, computational propaganda, social movements and open source data analysis.

BRAZEAU, Andréanne – Webmaster

Involved in the environmental cause since the beginning of her professional career, Andréanne Brazeau is pursuing a master's degree in applied political studies – with a specialization in environmental issues – and a graduate degree in environmental management at the University of Sherbrooke. Holder of a bachelor's degree in international studies, Andréanne embraced her passion for politics when she took part in the Conferences of Parties (COP) to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC). In 2018, she attended COP24 in Katowice (Poland) as a climate justice activist while, in 2019, she attended COP25 in Madrid (Spain) as a master's degree researcher. A former Communications Project Manager for ENvironnement JEUnesse, a non-profit organization working in environmental education, Ms. Brazeau currently is a board member for the Réseau québécois des groupes écologistes [Québec Network of Ecological Groups].

DUONG, Éliane – Research Assistant

A research assistant at the UNESCO Chair for the Prevention of Violent Radicalization and Extremism (UNESCO-PREV Chair), Éliane Duong is currently pursuing a bachelor's degree in psychology at the University of Québec in Montréal (UQÀM). She intends to complete her specialization thesis before Spring 2020. As part of the Canadian Practitioners Network for Prevention of Radicalization and Extremist Violence (CPN-PREV) team, she hopes to acquire knowledge and skills in the field of research, as well as in topics such as violence and resilience. To her, resilience is a source of passion, inspiration and hope.

DUROCHER-CORFA, Loïc – Research Assistant

Holder of a bachelor's degree in psychology and sociology from the University of Québec in Montréal (UQÀM), Loïc Durocher-Corfa is currently pursuing graduate studies in psychology with a focus on humanist and psychodynamic conceptions at UQÀM. His research interests include self-harm, suffered or perpetrated violence and radicalization. Mr. Durocher-Corfa is a research assistant for the UNESCO Chair for the Prevention of Violent Radicalization and Extremism (UNESCO-PREV Chair).

GRIJALVA-LAVALLÉE, Raphaël – Research Assistant

Currently pursuing a bachelor's degree in psychology at the University of Québec in Montréal (UQÀM), Raphaël Grijalva-Lavallée focuses his research on radicalization leading to violent extremism and psychosocial mechanisms leading to the acceptance of violent ideologies. More specifically, Mr. Grijalva-Lavallée's work covers the acceptance and social cohesion processes among Québec's far-right groups. The second-year student is a research assistant for the UNESCO Chair for the Prevention of Violent Radicalization and Extremism (UNESCO-PREV).

LAMBERT, Gabriel – Communications Intern

A graduate of the bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Montréal, Gabriel Lambert has decided to continue his university studies at the University of Sherbrooke in the cooperative path in communication and marketing. First of all passionate about politics, he discovered a marked interest in communication and political marketing during his studies in Montréal, hence the interest in honing these skills in the world of communication.

ST-JEAN, Anne – Applied Politics Intern

St-Jean holds a bachelor's degree in international studies from the Université de Montréal and is currently pursuing a master's degree in applied political studies with a specialization in public and international policy at the University of Sherbrooke. During her undergraduate studies, Ms. St-Jean developed an interest in environmental and public policy issues while also being involved in a Montreal organization working with refugees. Advocating for social justice and public participation, she worked in youth mobilization at Oxfam-Québec and participated in the Parlement étudiant du Québec, a model parliament held annually at the National Assembly of Québec. During her graduate studies, Anne St-Jean wishes to explore the prejudices experienced by certain marginalized groups among other topics.