Sandra King OAM is a Brisbane born Aboriginal woman of the Quandamooka, Bundjalung and South Sea Islander peoples. She was one of the first Aboriginal models in the 1970s, completing her Training in Department and Grooming followed by Modelling Courses with Billie North Promotions. This led to her being booked extensively for newspaper fashion articles and fashion parades for Myer, David Jones, Sportsgirl and numerous clothing and manufacturing businesses. After a successful modelling career and raising a family, Sandra went back into the industry she knows and loves. In 1988, Sandra was at the forefront of the fashion industry by using only Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander models in her parades as well as having Aboriginal models who were outside the 'norm' of size 8 and 10. In 1990, she completed a one year full time Trainee-Manager course with Buckingham's Modelling Agency (now Vivien's) which gave her the confidence to establish her own business.

Sandra aims to achieve the greatest possible impact upon the Indigenous and non-Indigenous community by delivering practical, inspiring, marketable and engaging projects. With over 30 years experience in directing fashion parades (specialising in Indigenous fashion parades), Sandra trains emerging Indigenous models in choreographed routines, teaches personal development and engages in cultural discussions with Elders. She received a Medal of the Order of Australia (OAM) on Australia Day 2020 for service to the indigenous community.
