

Audrey Jen is a sophomore at Clemson University from Pittsburgh, PA. She is majoring in Plant & Environmental Sciences with an Agronomy concentration and minoring in Spanish Studies. She is a member of the Calhoun Honors College. Audrey is passionate about expanding her knowledge and experiences in food insecurity, produce, and sustainable agriculture.

Audrey is a student intern at Clemson's Student Organic Farm. In the past year, she has developed a deep connection and appreciation for the produce grown at the farm and the produce industry.

At Clemson, Audrey enjoys working at Clemson's Communication Center as a Public Speaking tutor. She is vice-president of Clemson's Agronomy Club, and a student ambassador for the College of Agriculture, Forestry, and Life Sciences. In her free time, she loves watching collegiate and professional sports, playing intramural flag football, and spending time outdoors.

Audrey is very grateful to have been selected as one of the 2019-2020 STARS scholarship recipients and is excited about the opportunity to attend the Southeastern Exposure Conference.
