So, you don't have a car

Unfortunately, you will need one in order to get around up here. You are coming out of the country, no local public transportation or Uber. You can however take the train from the city. The preferred method is to take Amtrak out of Penn Station and into Rhinecliff (RHI) It's a gloriously peaceful and very scenic trip along the Hudson River the whole way. You can then either make arrangements with the local Subaru dealership [1] that keeps a small fleet of rental cars at about $50 a day, tax inclusive. If arriving during business hours they will even pick you up at the train station staff permitting. If Ruge's is sold out try Enterprise in Kingston and they will pick you up, but it is a little inconvenient to go to Kingston and then back again.

The Alternative train route is to take Metro North into Poughkeepsie and then a cab to either Hertz or Avis a few miles from the station. It is then about half hour drive to the Inn.
