Mindful leadership means creating long term profitable relationships – for all concerned parties. Owners, leaders, managers and sales professionals need to be intrinsically interconnected with each other as well as their clients/customers in mutually respectful, supportive and beneficial ways.

Business relationships can be mindful – if we create them that way. Mindful relationships treat past, present and future events as having influence over the well-being of all involved parties. Fearless leaders create mindful relationships with fellow teammates and their clients/customers.

Winning leadership forces face, embrace and befriend fear. They lean into challenges together, and are unstoppable. They're inspired, driven by the "befriend fear" mindset/skillset.

Progressive, powerful business leaders recognize team members' bias and fears. They build team trust, an essential component of a profitable leadership culture.

Innovative leaders exhibit personal power, not just position power. They create mutually supportive winning teams that produce mindful revenue, not just greater numbers.

Build mindful relationships with teammates and clients/customers – everyone wins.
