Dear

Recently Pew Research, an independent and non-political research center, published their latest report titled: "Two thirds of Americans think government should do more on climate".

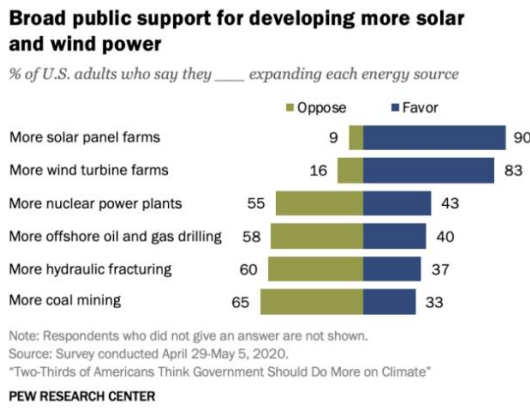

The wide-ranging research provides interesting insight into the views Americans hold on climate change, renewable energy and the role of government.

I would encourage you to read the report and form your own view of the findings and how Southampton County can play its role. I found the statistics that 90% of the population favor the development of more solar farms particularly interesting.
