“Autism Canada Foundation is a place of insight, knowledge and top notch information on new treatments and discoveries. It is a site that we visit almost weekly to help us learn, and teach others everything we need to know, to better help our son thrive. They gave us an understanding into his diagnosis when we were all at our most fragile. They continue to educate us. Most importantly they continue to give us hope each and every day. And for that we thank them.”

KELLY WHITTY & FAMILY
VISION
A world in which Autism is preventable and treatable.

MISSION
Autism Canada Foundation is a national, volunteer led organization, providing treatment and resource information to families living with autism, and influencing related health care and government policy.

VALUES & BELIEFS

WE VALUE HOPE.
We believe that recovery from autism is possible.

WE VALUE KNOWLEDGE.
We believe autism is a treatable medical condition affecting the whole body.

WE VALUE COLLABORATION.
We believe in a multidisciplinary approach to treating autism.

WE VALUE THE INDIVIDUAL.
We believe individuals with autism contribute positively to society.

SUPPORT MESSAGE
“As a service provider who is in constant touch with families on a daily basis, I find Autism Canada a convenient and informative avenue to keep up with current trends, stories, and research. This field of research is constantly moving forward, and although more has yet to be discovered, the networking that Autism Canada provides amongst professionals and families provides its own essential role. So thank you to Autism Canada, and keep up the great work!”

LEANNE STYLES, SENIOR PROGRAM COORDINATOR, REACH FOR THE RAINBOW
2012 marked a year of growth for Autism Canada, but, sadly, it was also marked with the continued growth of autism prevalence rates. In March 2012, the CDC released new data stating that one in 88 children, including one in 54 boys, is now being diagnosed with autism.

With growing numbers comes greater demand for support, and that growth was reflected in the number of people accessing information and support from Autism Canada, which doubled in 2012. When families contact us, their needs are diverse and the ways in which they access support are equally varied. Many families get one-on-one support, while others find information online through resources like our screening tools, directory of treatment options or lectures by autism experts. We are constantly expanding our resources to fulfill the needs of Canadians.

Autism Canada’s staff and Board of Directors all work hard and show great dedication to fulfilling our mandate. We are committed to the future of this organization and to autism stakeholders. This year, board members had the opportunity to work with professional counsel on Strategic Planning. We spent hours planning and preparing for two days of face-to-face meetings. We re-examined our vision, mission and core activities and we identified value propositions. We did a market analysis, including SWOT and Competition Analyses, that resulted in the development of a Marketing Strategy and the foundation for a Marketing Plan. This plan will see us through for years to come and help ensure future growth and success.

Autism Canada takes the utmost pride in our work and is accountable to our donors. We proudly prepare and post our Annual Report online, along with our audited financial statements. This year we committed to taking this one step further by starting the application process to receive accreditation through Imagine Canada’s Standards Program. This will demonstrate Autism Canada’s excellence in five key areas: board governance, financial accountability and transparency, fundraising, staff management and volunteer involvement.

I am delighted to share that all of Autism Canada’s Board members are also donors. In 2012, the board took the lead on setting up the first fundraising campaign using our new online fundraising tool. An anonymous donor challenged the board to raise $15,000 and offered to match the total if the goal was reached. We proudly exceeded the goal by raising over $18,000.

Our commitment to advancing the science in finding promising treatments and a possible cure is unrelenting. This summer, we co-hosted a Scientific Symposium devoted to exploring the potential role of infectious agents in autism phenotypes. Experts from several diverse disciplines met to discuss the growing evidence for microbiological etiology in certain forms of Autism Spectrum Disorder. If infectious agents can be shown to play an important role in the etiology of autism, this offers an exciting and tangible opportunity for development of novel diagnostics, therapies, and preventive measures.

Thank you for giving us the opportunity to serve you, our donors and the thousands of parents and families across Canada who work day in and day out to help your loved ones diagnosed with autism. You are the reason we exist. You are the inspiration behind Autism Canada.

Warm regards,

DON BLANE
To say it is an honour to work on behalf of the autism community across this country is an understatement; I feel so fortunate to be doing a job for which I have such a deep-seated passion. None of the success we’ve had over the last decade would have been possible without our founding directors’ vision, David Patchell-Evans’s initial support, and the hard work of directors, staff, volunteers and our wonderful donors. I am eternally grateful to everyone and excited to share my highlights of 2012.

I sit on a number of external committees. One about which I am particularly excited is the Autism Spectrum Disorders - Advisory Committee for the Public Health Agency of Canada’s Developmental Disorders Surveillance Unit. We met for two days in March with the intention of working towards the development of a National ASD Surveillance Program.

Years of lobbying the federal government on behalf of Autism Canada and the Canadian Autism Spectrum Disorders Alliance (CASDA) are finally paying off.

April was a very busy month. Autism Canada issued a press release just in time for World Autism Awareness Day (WAAD), April 2, in response to the CDC announcement that 1 in 88 children are now being diagnosed with autism. The message was clear: autism is a public health emergency and governments must work together and react immediately.

In honour of WAAD, we prepared letters and provided puzzle piece ribbon pins to all Members of Parliament in support of CASDA, an organization for which we sit on the Leadership Committee. I attended a reception co-hosted by Mr. Bruce Stanton, Assistant Deputy Chair of the Committees of the Whole, Mr. Mike Lake, M.P, The Hon. Jim Munson, Senator, and Mr. Glenn Thibeault, M.P. The goal of the reception was for each MP and Senator to personally meet and interact with an individual with autism.

At the end of April, I attended the Autism Research Institute (ARI) Conference in Newark, New Jersey. I drove to Newark along with Dr. Wendy Edwards, Autism Canada Director, three autism moms, and Ashley Johnston, Autism Canada staff, to take in lectures and network. We left the conference with new contacts, new ideas for our conference and, of course, new knowledge.

I attended the International Meeting for Autism Research (IMFAR) held in Toronto in May. It is an annual scientific meeting, convened each spring, to exchange and disseminate new scientific progress among ASD scientists and their trainees from around the world. I assisted the Autism Research Institute (ARI) by manning their booth. It was a real privilege to spend quality time with ARI’s Executive Director, Stephen Edleson, PhD, and staff. I thoroughly enjoyed taking in presentations and networking with some of the world’s most prominent researchers.

On a more personal note, this year was bittersweet: I was presented with the Queen Elizabeth Diamond Jubilee Medal by Senator Jim Munson, but I was unable to share the moment with my mother, who passed in the fall of 2012. She was Autism Canada’s biggest fan and never missed an opportunity to advocate for the cause. I accepted the award, proudly accompanied by my father and uncle, in a private presentation by Senator Munson in the Canadian Senate. It was a real honour to be nominated by a true Canadian autism champion like Senator Munson and receive this recognition.

We increased our staffing complement by two this year. Ashley Johnston came on as the Public Relations Coordinator in January and Lindsay Irvine came on as the Fund Development Manager in December. It has been a joy to have them as part of the team.

Please take the time to read through Autism Canada’s many accomplishments over 2012 and know that none of this success would be possible without your generous support of a wonderful cause.

Laurie Mawlam
“My daughter was formally diagnosed with moderate autism in October, 2011. We had no idea where to start and struggled to find answers. Without Autism Canada, I would have never been prepared for the formal diagnosis and started interventions right away. It’s only been 18 months since she was diagnosed but her progress has been tremendous. Autism Canada helped me to get started and continues to provide me with information that I can trust.”

STRATEGIC PLANNING

Strategic Planning is vital to Autism Canada to ensure we effectively focus our energy, resources, and time towards fulfilling our mandate. This past year, the board worked with professional counsel for two days to revisit and reaffirm our vision, mission and future direction. We examined internal and external factors and worked toward formulating strategies. This is a process the board is committed to doing on a regular basis.

GOVERNANCE

Autism Canada’s board understands the importance of good governance. The board is dedicated to ensuring that policies and processes are in place that stay in line with future growth. The board made a commitment this year to start the application process to receive accreditation through Imagine Canada’s Standards Program. While we have adhered to Imagine Canada’s Ethical Fundraising and Financial Accountability Code Program, this step represents an even bigger commitment to our stakeholders.

HUMAN RESOURCES

Autism Canada welcomed two new full-time employees and five summer students in 2012.

Ashley Johnston, a graduate from Humber College’s Public Relations program, works as Autism Canada’s Public Relations Coordinator. She has been handling all the Independent Fundraising Events and successfully implemented Autism Canada’s new online fundraising tool. She was instrumental in supporting our annual conference and also managed to host her own event, Love Is in the Air, in support of Autism Canada. She is a real asset to the team.

Lindsay Irvine came on board in early December as Autism Canada’s Fund Development Manager. She has an undergraduate degree and post graduate certificate from Humber College in Volunteer and Fundraising Management. Lindsay is a wonderful addition. Both of these positions were made possible thanks to a Career Focus Grant. This program provides funding to organizations to create career-related work experiences for post-secondary graduates. It has been invaluable to Autism Canada.

$30,000 RESEARCH DONATION

THE KILEE PATCHELL-EVANS AUTISM RESEARCH GROUP

It was with great pleasure that Autism Canada presented Dr. Derrick MacFabe, Director of the Kilee Patchell-Evans Autism Research Group, a cheque for $30,000 in support of the research taking place at the University of Western Ontario. The group’s outstanding research is some of the most promising and novel in the world. Through their animal model, they provide a unique environment to study the basic mechanisms involved in the causes and possible treatments for autism.

$30,000 research donation to the Kilee Patchell-Evans Autism Research Group

SUPPORT MESSAGE

“If it weren’t for an Autism Canada conference, I wouldn’t have looked at biomedical treatments for my son. Autism Canada continues to send helpful news in my inbox every week about what’s going on in the world of autism research and intervention. I am very grateful to have these nuggets of information. As I follow their trail, I hope to be able to bring my son to better health and higher functioning. Thank you Autism Canada.”

CHANGING THE COURSE OF AUTISM CONFERENCE/WEBCAST 2012

Since our inception, Autism Canada has been doing annual conferences throughout Canada. We quickly realized it only benefited a small percentage of the Canadian autism community.

We started webcasting the conference simultaneously in 2011 and captured the lectures to post online. This helped ensure all Canadians could tune in live or at their convenience to get the most current information on a range of topics pertaining to autism.

Last year, Autism Canada co-hosted our annual conference with the Autism Resource Centre in Moncton, New Brunswick. Over 600 people attended the conference and almost 1,000 watched live via webcast. Featured speakers included Martha Herbert, M.D., Ph.D., Stephen Shore, Ph.D., Isabelle Smith, Ph.D., and many others. These and other presentations are still available through AutismCanada.org

SCIENTIFIC SYMPOSIUM

It is our belief that research collaboration provides the most promise moving forward. With that in mind, Autism Canada, in collaboration with the Autism Research Institute, hosted our first Scientific Symposium on August 7, 2012, in Toronto, Ontario. Delegates from across Canada, the United States and Scandinavia, including Dr. Tore Midtvedt, came together to listen to four key presentations by Drs. Sydney M. Finegold, M.D., Derrick MacFabe, M.D., Emma Allen-Vercoe, Ph.D., and Richard E. Frye, M.D., Ph.D. This was followed by an open discussion exploring the intersections between microbiology, infectious disease, neurodevelopment, behaviour, gut function, metabolism, immunity and gene expression.

The presentations from the Scientific Symposium are available at AutismCanada.org/scientificsymposium

AUTISM PHYSICIAN HANDBOOK PACKAGE

Autism Canada was able to print and distribute the first 1,000 copies of the Autism Physician Handbook package, thanks to the support of Bailey Metal Products and Starbucks Coffee Canada (Toronto locations). The package includes an illustrated handbook, a DVD and a poster, all packaged together in a market-tested envelope.

These donations also allow us to provide 3,000 packages to delegates at the 2013 Primary Care Today conference in Toronto. This event is Canada’s largest education conference and medical exposition, attracting Family Physicians, Pharmacists, and Nurse Practitioners from across Canada.

The Autism Physician Handbook package ensures that physicians:

• Have the tools to screen toddlers for autism
• Are aware of common medical problems associated with autism
• Can make referrals to specialist when needed

FAMILY SUPPORT AND RESOURCE PROGRAM

As the prevalence of autism rises, so does the number of families reaching out to Autism Canada. In 2011, 95,091 accessed our Family Support and Resource Program. In 2012, this number doubled to 185,771. Over 7,000 people watched our video content featuring presentations from autism experts and 19,000 families made use of our online Screening for Autism tool. Our values and beliefs resonate with families, and they look to us for hope and cutting edge information. We are there for them. Empowering families to make informed choices is key to helping all individuals with autism reach their potential.

AUTISM CANADA responds to US Study Showing Average Autism Prevalence Up 23%
Press Release
March 30, 2012

Research OV – Just in time for World Autism Awareness Day, April 2, a study released yesterday from the United States Centers for Disease Control & Prevention (CDC) indicates autism now affects an alarming one in 88 children, compared to one in 10,000 cases in the 1980s.

Yesterday from the United States Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), released by ADDM in 2009 showed autism spectrum children.

According to a CDC press release issued today, “One are many children and families who need help,” said CDC Director Thomas Frieden, M.D., M.P.H.

Autism Canada calls for swift government action, and an immediate focus on the following areas is critical:

Prevention:
- Children with autism have underlying medical conditions that often go undiagnosed or unnoticed. These conditions affect the full spectrum of our government health and medical research community. A newly published review of the world’s leading autism researchers recommended additional studies.

Support:
- Families are often unable to pay for basic speech and occupational therapies. Government needs to work together and react immediately. Autism Canada is a member of the Canadian Autism Spectrum Disorders Alliance. We also collaborate annually with a regional autism organization in Canada and the United States (colleges, universities, libraries, etc.)

Media Appearances and Press Releases

In 2012, Autism Canada was sought out to make timely and accurate comments on the latest news related to science, advocacy and topics that impact the autism community. We responded to numerous media inquiries and issued two press releases through Market Wire. The first release was in reaction to the CDC announcement that one in 88 children were now being diagnosed with autism and the second was to announce the release of the Scientific Symposium presentations online.

Social Network

Autism Canada keeps Canadians informed through numerous social media and online outlets, including our website, e-Newsletter, Facebook, Twitter, Vimeo and Youtube.

It was a great honour to be recognized for the second year in a row by Babble.com as one of the Top 30 Autism Facebook Pages in the World. Babble.com is an online resource for parents, providing exceptional service content and incisive, honest essays about parenting. Our social media following has grown, with Facebook Fans reaching 4,859 (up 1,500 from last year), and Twitter followers reaching 635. If you are not a fan or follower, please get online and follow us today to ensure you stay up to date.

The Autism Enigma

While over 546,000 households tuned in when the episode premiered as part of David Suzuki’s “The Nature of Things” back in 2011, thousands more watched in 2012 via a repeat CBC broadcast and through their website.

In 2012, the documentary aired outside Canada via the network ARTE, which broadcasts in French and German in those countries and also on some satellite stations in Europe. It was also aired on the Australian Broadcasting Corporation’s investigative journalism series “Four Corners.”

The film has been selling on DVD in the United States and France as well as in the educational market in Canada and the United States (colleges, universities, libraries, etc.)

There have been more than 60,500 views of the producer’s site and it is still attracting viewer comments.

Partnerships / Affiliations

Collaboration is one of Autism Canada’s core values. We need to work together as quickly as possible for the benefit of the autism community, and we need to break down silos with governments, health care professionals, researchers, service providers and even autism organizations.

Autism Canada is proud to be an active member of the Global Autism Alliance and the Canadian Autism Spectrum Disorders Alliance. We also collaborate annually with a regional autism organization in Canada to host a conference and national webcast. We are committed to building a strong relationship because everything we do is for the benefit of the entire autism community and working together will accelerate the process of getting us where we need to be.
Third-Party Fundraisers are crucial to Autism Canada’s efforts in accomplishing our mission critical activities. The services we provide would not be possible without the generosity of volunteers across Canada who take time out of their busy lives to contribute to our cause.

Although we cannot acknowledge all of the third-party events in this section, we would like take this opportunity to thank everyone who participated – from organizers to volunteers to participants. Their hard work has contributed immensely to improving the lives of Canadian families and their children living with autism.

Third Party events vary in size and scope – whether it is a bake-sale, open-mic concert, choral performance at a church or golf-tournament, each event is an integral part of raising funds to support children with autism.

An important component of our Third-Party Event fundraisers, beyond raising funds for our organization, is the awareness these events provide in communities all over Canada.

MATCHING GIFT CHALLENGE

The Board of Directors was challenged by an anonymous donor to raise $15,000, a goal the donor offered to match. The donation was directed towards the most promising research in Canada at the Kilee Patchell-Evans Autism Research Group. Using Autism Canada’s new online fundraising tool, the Directors reached out to colleagues, family and friends. Their efforts resulted in a $30,000 donation being presented to Dr. Derrick MacFabe at the Annual General Meeting.

ART BY PATRICK

Based in Moncton, New Brunswick, Patrick Hardy launched his Art by Patrick project this year in support of Autism Canada. Patrick has always been interested in the arts and loves to draw and create art whenever he can. When his son was diagnosed with autism, it seemed like a perfect idea to match these two loves for a great cause. Patrick has raised over $2,000. His work has been featured on Autism Canada's Facebook page and newsletter. To view his artwork and support his efforts, visit his website www.artbypatrick.ca and Facebook page.

STEP BY STEP AUTISM AWARENESS WALK

On October 5, Dorothy Day tied up her running shoes and showed her dedication and commitment to the autism community by running 20km. She started her run solo in Belleville, Ontario, finishing with family and friends running alongside and applauding her as she reached her finish line at the Shannonville Motorsport Raceway. Dorothy's inspiration and enthusiasm comes from her daughter, who is diagnosed with autism. Dorothy plans to make this an annual event, and Autism Canada will be there next year, participating and encouraging others to join in. For more information, visit Dorothy’s Facebook page, Step By Step, or contact us directly.

“Autism Canada has a thoughtful, thorough, responsible and pro-active approach that is much needed in facing the challenges of autism.”

JAKES FOR AUTISM

Krystal D’Souza chose Autism Canada to be her charity of choice for the Miss Canada Globe Petite Pageant. Krystal produced a fantastic YouTube video promoting and celebrating her Jakes for Autism Event. The event was held in June at Jakes Bar & Grill in Unionville, Ontario, and raised over $1,400. Thank you for being a wonderful young woman making your mark in today’s society.

CONQUER AUTISM TOGETHER

David Galvao is a proud father of three children. When his son was diagnosed with autism he wanted to step up and do his part by raising money for a cause that touched his heart. With his family by his side, he raised over $4,400 using Autism Canada’s online fundraising tool. David’s employer, Best Western, supported him with a generous donation. David is a powerhouse Autism Dad.

AUTISM FUNDRAISER BRUNCH

On May 27, at the Sheraton Laval, the group Autism for a Cause, hosted “This Beautiful Mind” autism fundraiser brunch. The day was creatively organized with the goal that each guest will bring home something from this event to spark awareness all year round. The 200 attendees were inspired by a keynote address by Shauna Zia. Carmela Catanzaro and her planning committee did a wonderful job, which resulted in $6,000 being donated to Autism Canada.

POLICEMEN VS. FIREMEN GOLF TOURNAMENT

The Scarborough Firemen were up for the challenge when the 42 Division of Toronto Police Services challenged them on the golf course. A great day of golf was had by all and $1,000 was donated to Autism Canada. Director Alex Stephens accepted a cheque with police officers and firefighters by his side.

SUPPORT MESSAGE

"Autism Canada supports families on many levels. Thanks to the efforts of many, Autism Canada continues to raise awareness and affect change. The Autism Canada Newsletter certainly stands out for me because of how it extends to so many. The news updates and research articles and personal stories repeatedly support our journey with autism. Thank You!"

HYDRONIC PARTS GROUP

Hydronic Parts Group (HPG) hosted their fifth annual golf tournament in support of Autism Canada. Helen and Doug Mader and family, while not touched by the disorder directly, have a special place in their hearts for those who are. Christa Mader, Advertising/Marketing/Event Coordinator for HPG, is the tournament organizer and has the magic touch of making this a stellar event. Golfers are treated to a wonderful day of golf, a terrific dinner, prizes and presentations. Autism Canada was presented with a $15,000 cheque the day of the event, bringing their total donation to an astounding $67,000 over the last five years.

CHANGING SEASONS GALA

Senti Rasa and beautiful wife Rose Jhagroo hosted the fourth annual Changing Seasons Gala in Toronto in honour of Rose’s son Christopher. This power couple single-handedly hosts this annual event that features a dinner, dance, silent auction and, this year, a fashion show. This event is open to the public, so if you are interested in attending, watch for information posted on Autism Canada’s Facebook page and newsletter. Thank you Senti and Rose for your continued dedication.

AFTERNOON FOR AUTISM

High school students Victoria Barbosa and Sarah Conte executed a wonderful luncheon event for 100 people on April 15 at The Old Barber House in Mississauga. Autism Canada Chair Don Blane spoke to the attendees to kick off the event. Attendees enjoyed a wonderful lunch, followed by a silent auction and raffle. Sarah and Victoria’s event raised over $3,700 and priceless awareness. We salute Sarah and Victoria.

LOVE IS IN THE AIR VALENTINE’S VARIETY SHOW

Love was in the air at the Town Hall in Bothwell, Ontario. Local singers, dancers and actors provided entertainment, with a beautiful chocolate fondue and other treats at intermission. Local merchants sponsored the event, which was widely publicized and drew a full house. This event was hosted by our own Ashley Johnston and resulted in huge awareness for our community. After the event, Autism Canada signs were erected on our community welcome board, further raising our public profile.

SUPPORT MESSAGE

“I look forward to Autism Canada’s regular newsletter; as a professional I find it very informative. The good work that Autism Canada does is vital for families of children who are affected by autism. Keep up the great work!”

TREASURER’S MESSAGE

Autism Canada places a high value on our relationship with you, our donors. Without your support we would not be able to support the autism community across Canada like we do. We thank you for your commitment to us.

We believe that transparency and accountability are essential to our success. With this in mind, we are a member of Imagine Canada’s Ethical Code Program.

The Ethical Fundraising and Financial Accountability Code lays out a set of standards for charitable organizations to manage and report their financial affairs responsibly. By adhering to these standards, we are complying with generally accepted practices for soliciting and managing donor dollars. This is important because you, our supporters, are entitled to transparency and the greatest impact possible for your investment in us.

Autism Canada’s audited financial statements were prepared by MacNeill Edmundson Professional Corporation in London, Ontario. A complete set of financial statements are available online at www.autismcanada.org.
