BY

Ethan Coen & Joel Coen

Black.

ED (V.O.)

Yeah, I worked in a barbershop. But I never considered myself a barber...

We track back from a barber's pole.

ED (V.O.)

...I stumbled into it--well, married into it more precisely...

opening

We track back from a shopkeeper's bell triggered by an door. The pull back and tilt down show the top of the of a customer entering in slow motion.

ED (V.O.)

...I wasn't my establishment. Like the fella says, I only work here...

pomade,
We track along a shelf backed by a mirror and holding aftershave, hair tonic, a whisk brush.

call 'em, even though there were only two of us working...

We track in on a big man in a barber's smock scissoring a lock of hair that he pulls taut between two fingers

ED (V.O.)

...Frank Raffo, my brother-in-law, was the principal barber. And man, could he talk...

Another man in a barber's smock is running electric across a child's head. A cigarette between his lips.

ED (V.O.)

...Now maybe if you're eleven or twelve years old, Frank's got an interesting point of view, but sometimes it got on my nerves. Not that I'd complain, mind you. Like I said, he was the principal barber.
Frank's father August--they called him Guzzi--had worked the heads up in Santa Rosa for thirty-five years until his ticker stopped in the middle of a Junior Flat Top. He left the shop to Frankie free and clear. And that seemed to satisfy all of Frank's ambitions: cutting the hair and chewing the fat. Me, I don't talk much...

He plucks the cigarette from his mouth and taps its ash a tray.

ED (V.O.)

...I just cut the hair...

through the front window. The two barbers--the narrator his brother-in-law--sit in two of the barber chairs, reading magazines.

FRANK

Says here that the Russians exploded n A-bomb and there's not a damn thing we can do about it.

ED

Uh-huh.

FRANK

How d'ya like them apples?

Beat.

FRANK

...Ed?

ED

Huh?

FRANK

Russians exploded an A-bomb.

ED

Yeah.

FRANK

(shaking his head)

Jesus...

ED (V.O.)

Now, being a barber is a lot like being a barman or a soda-jerk; there's not much to it once you've learned the basic moves. For the kids there's the Butch, or the Heinie...

Doris liked the work, accounting;
she liked knowing where everything stood. And she got a ten per cent they were coming over for dinner--as Doris said, we were 'entertaining'...

suit, smoking.

ED (V.O.)

...Me, I don't like entertaining.

The doorbell rings.

THE DOOR

demure,
Ed opens it to reveal a large man in a suit and his bird-like wife.

DAVE

How ya doin', Ed?

ED

OK. Take your coat, Ann?

DINNER TABLE

The two couples are in the middle of the meal.

DAVE

Japs had us pinned down in Buna for something like six weeks. Well, I gotta tell ya, I thought we had it tough, but, Jesus, we had supply. They were eating grubs, nuts, thistles. When we finally up and bust off the beach we found Arnie Bragg, kid missing on recon; the Japs had eaten the sonofabitch, if you'll pardon the, uh... And this was a scrawny, pimply kid too, nothin' to write home about. I mean, I never would've, ya know, so what do I say, honey? When I don't like dinner, what do I say?

Ann smiles wanly.

DAVE

...I say, Jesus, honey, Arnie Bragg-- again?!

He roars with laughter.

Ed gives an acknowledging smile.

DAVE

...Arnie Bragg--again?!

He dries his eyes with the corner of a napkin.

DAVE

...Were you in the service, Ed?

ED

No, Dave, I wasn't.

DORIS

Ed was 4F on account of his fallen arches.

DAVE

Mm, that's tough.

Crickets chirp. From inside the house we hear laughter and clattering dishes.

ED (V.O.)

...Yeah... I guess Doris liked all that he-man stuff. Sometimes I had the feeling that she and Big Dave were a lot closer than they let on...

He turns and looks through the screen door into the house.

dishes across.

ED (V.O.)

...The signs were all there plain enough--not that I was gonna prance about it, mind you. It's a free country.

Footsteps approach the front porch.

With the squeak of the screen door, Big Dave emerges.

DAVE

Ed gives a half-grin of wry acknowledgement. Big Dave forearms against the porch railing, gazing out at the lawn.

DAVE

...That's quite a wife you got there.

ED

Mm.

DAVE

She's a rare one.

ED

How's business, Dave?

DAVE

Couldn't be better. These're boom times in retailing. We're opening another store, Big Dave's Annex, there on Garson. This is strictly haberdashery--casual wear, pyjamas, ladies' foundations and undergarments.
Matter of fact, I'm thinking of making Doris the comptroller. How're things at the, uh, the barbershop?

ED

All right, I guess.

DAVE

...Fine. Fine. Well, you might want to drop by the Annex when we open, update your suit--'course, you're in the smock all day.

He chuckles.

DAVE

...Say, where do you get those things anyway?

ED

Specialty store down in Sacramento.

DAVE

Uh-huh.

Big

There is a silence. At length, gazing out at the lawn,
Dave clears his throat.

Doris and I went to church once a week...

We are tilting down a long stained-glass window
the resurrection of Christ.

ED (V.O.)

...Usually Tuesday night...

Faintly, we hear an amplified voice:

CALLER

Ed sits at a long table, staring at the window, a lit cigarette in his mouth.

CALLER

ED (V.O.)

Doris wasn't big on divine worship...

Doris is concentrating on the six cards spread in front her.

ED (V.O.)

...and I doubt if she believed in life everlasting; she'd most likely tell you that our reward is on this earth and bingo is probably the extent of it...

Still focused on her cards, Doris mutters to Ed:

DORIS

Watch your card, honey.

CALLER

I... sixteen...

Ed continues to gaze off at the window, smoke pluming his cigarette.

ED (V.O.)

I wasn't crazy about the game, but,
I don't know, it made her happy, and I found the setting peaceful.

mean, if you're really serious. You tie your own flies, you do a--I know it's maticless, I know, people say, hey, you can buy flies at the store-- but you can buy your fish at the store, Ed, you see what I'm saying?

ED

Uh-huh.

FRANK

The point is there's a certain art to the process. The point is not merely to provide, and let me point out, these fish are not as dumb as you might think.

ED

Uh-huh.

FRANK

Sportsmanship! That's my point. June fly, Ed? Mosquito? Which of these?
Well, what fish do you seek?

ED

Yeah.

FRANK

Sure, go to the store. Go there, describe to the man where you will be fishing, and for what, and the weather conditions, sun, no sun, whatnot, and so forth, and then you might as well have the man go ahead and sell you the goddamn FISH, Ed...

The bell over the front door tinkles, and the swarthy aged man walks in. He is well dressed--perhaps a little snazzily for this small town--and has a sporty pencil mustache.

MAN

OK, boys, which of you gets the privilege?

FRANK

We're just closing, friend.

MAN

Oh, happy days! I wish I was doing well enough to turn away business! More power to ya, brother! The public be damned!

FRANK

Hey, what's your problem, friend? This is a business establishment with posted hours--

Ed cuts in with a jerk of the head.

ED

I'll take care of him, go ahead,
Frank. Have a seat, mister.

Frank looks sourly at the stranger.

FRANK

...You sure, Eddie?

ED

Yeah, yeah--go home.

As Frank leaves:

FRANK

In your ear, mister.

The stranger chuckles.

STRANGER

Oh, those fiery Mediterraneans. Say!
Not so fast there, brother--

Ed has switched on the clippers, but the stranger waves him back; he lifts off a toupee.

STRANGER

...Pretty good, huh? Fools even the experts. 100 percent human hair, handcrafted by Jacques of San Francisco, and I'd hate to have to tell you what I paid for it.

ED

Uh-huh.

STRANGER

Yes, it's a nice rug. I'm paying for it down on the installment plan...

Ed starts to trim the stranger's fringe.

STRANGER

...A lot of folks live with the pate exposed. They say the dames think it's sexy. But for my money it's just not good grooming--and grooming, my friend, is probably the most important thing in business--after personality, of course...

He twists around to offer his hand.

STRANGER

...Creighton Tolliver, pleased to know ya.

ED

Ed Crane. What brings you to Santa Rosa?

CREIGHTON

A goose, friend. I was chasing a wild goose. Ed, have you ever heard of venture capital?

ED

Uh--

CREIGHTON

Well, it's the wildest goose there is. Risk money. Very speculative. Except, Ed, in certain situations, it's not, see? I thought I had a prospect here. Well, I make the haul up and this lousy so-and-so tells me his situation has changed--all his capital's gonna be tied up in expansion plans of his own. Thank you, mother! Pop goes another bubble! It's only the biggest business opportunity since Henry Ford and I can't seem to interest a soul!

ED

That right.

CREIGHTON

It's called dry cleaning. You heard me right, brother, 'dry cleaning'-- wash without water, no suds, no tumble, no stress on the clothes. It's all done with chemicals, friend, and your garments end up crisp and fresh. And here's the capper: no shrinkage.

ED

Huh.

CREIGHTON

That's right! Dry cleaning--remember the name. It's going to revolutionize the laundry industry, and those that get in early are gonna bear the fruit away. All I need is $10,000 to open my first store, then I use its cash flow to finance another, and so on-- leap frog, bootstrap myself a whole chain. Well, me and a partner. Cleanliness, friend. There's money in it. There's a future. There's room to grow... Say, that's looking pretty good. Let's see it with the hairpiece on...

BATHROOM DOORWAY

It is evening. Ed leans against the bathroom doorjamb contemplatively off, hands thrust into his pockets, a cigarette between his lips pluming smoke.

Ed takes the cigarette from his mouth, exhales.

ED (V.O.)

...My first instinct was, no, no, the whole idea was nuts. But maybe that was the instinct that kept me locked up in the barbershop, nose against the exit, afraid to try turning the knob. What if I could get the money?

Mm.

FRANK

Yeah--lucky for us, huh, pal?

ED

No, I mean it's growing, it's part of us. And we cut it off. And throw

ED (V.O.)

Big Dave did it, though...

Ed, sitting in his car, is watching.

ED (V.O.)

...I sent a note telling him where to drop the money...

HOTEL HALLWAY

Ed emerges from a stairwell and goes to a standing ashtray by the elevator.

ED (V.O.)

...and he did. He came across.

Ed reaches into the trash hole in the ashtray column and pulls out a Nirdlinger's bag.

He goes back to the stairwell.

ANOTHER FLOOR

Ed emerges from the stairwell, goes to a door and knocks.

The door swings open.

CREIGHTON

Yeah, good, how are ya, come in...

Ed follows him into the room.

CREIGHTON

...You bring a check?

ED

Cash.

CREIGHTON

Cash?!

He gives Ed a look.

CREIGHTON

...Usually we do this kind of thing with a bank draft. But cash--that's fine--it's all the same in the end--dough's dough, huh?

ED

Sure.

CREIGHTON

I got the paperwork here. Partnership papers here, they reflect our agreement: fifty-fifty on the net, I supply professional services, you supply the capital. I'll give you a receipt on the dough there, huh?

ED

Yeah.

CREIGHTON

Pretty straightforward, but I don't know if you wanna show this stuff to a lawyer--

ED

It's OK.

CREIGHTON

Yeah, screw 'em, huh? Pay 'em to tangle it up and then you pay 'em to untangle it, what's the point?

He perspires as he counts the money.

CREIGHTON

...Just a second here, I'll give you a receipt on the, uh... Whoa, Nellie... Oh, by the way, we didn't talk about this, I, uh, I think I'm gonna call the place Tolliver's, after me, you know, I didn't think you were much interested in, uh--

ED

That'll be fine.

CREIGHTON

Yeah, good. Lemme just, uh...

He wipes his brow, finishes counting.

CREIGHTON

...Yeah, that's it. As per our discussion.

ED

Uh-huh.

Creighton hands Ed an executed agreement and a receipt.

CREIGHTON

Well, there it is. Writ large in legal escripture, next step is--

ED

Look, uh... Creighton...

He gives Creighton a level stare, smoke pluming from the cigarette planted in his mouth.

ED

...You're not gonna screw me on this?

CREIGHTON

Screw you--Jesus! Take it to a lawyer! No, I insist! This is dry cleaning, this is not some fly-by-night thing here! I must say, I've been an entrepreneur for thirteen years and I've never--

ED

All right.

CREIGHTON

And I've never been asked--Look, you want the dough back? You know who I am! You--

ED

OK.

Creighton mops his brow again.

CREIGHTON

So, uh... Tolliver's is OK then?

CAR

Ed drives with the usual cigarette in his mouth. Doris sits next to him. Rural scenery slips by in the background.

ED (V.O.)

The next day was Saturday. We were going to a reception for Doris' cousin Gina, who'd just married a wop vintner out near Modesto. Doris didn't much feel like going, and I didn't either, but, like she said, we had a Commitment.

Doris gazes stonily out at the road. At length:

DORIS

...I hate wops.

Ed gives her a brief glance. Doris glares at him.

DORIS

...What's so damn strange about that?

ED

I didn't say a word.

She looks back out at the road.

DORIS

...You didn't have to grow up with 'em.

This brings nothing from Ed. Doris shakes her head.

WALTER

Well, of course, I, uh, it's out of my league, criminal stuff. I do, uh, probate, real estate, title search, uh... I'd be absolutely worthless, something like this. Absolutely worthless.

He belches.

WALTER

WALTER

Well, there's Lloyd Garroway in San Francisco. Probity--you know, no one ever said anything iffy about Lloyd Garroway. Conservative. Jury might like that. Might like that here.

He takes a sip of his drink.

WALTER

He goes to the glass-paned doorway to his office, Frank trailing dejectedly behind. They enter, the door closes, and we hear their muffled voices from inside, the sense of the words lost.

Ed sits and watches the two men perform their pantomime of business: Frank nervously reads documents with one hand cupped to his forehead for concentration; the banker passes successive documents across his desk with a word of explanation for each as Frank signs.

Ed takes out a cigarette and lights it, watching impassively.

ED (V.O.)

The barbershop. Doris and Frank's father had worked thirty years to own it free and clear. Now it got signed over to the bank, and the bank signed some money over to Frank, and Frank signed the money over...

I'm seeing her tomorrow. You should be there. Three o'clock. One more thing: you keep your mouth shut. I get the lay of the land, I tell you what to say. No talking out of school. What's out of school? Everything's out of school. I do the talking; you keep your trap shut. I'm an attorney, you're a barber; you don't know anything. Understood?

ED

Ann, will you come in, sit down, maybe have a drink?

ANN

Sometimes knowledge is a curse, Ed.
After this happened, things changed.
Big Dave... he never touched me again.

Ed says nothing.

it wasn't her. Perhaps this will bring it out, finally. Perhaps now it will all come out.

She turns and heads down the walk.

Her high-heeled footsteps echo on the walk, then the sidewalk,
then are lost in the rustle of leaves.

Ed watches her go: a small black figure, growing smaller.

PRISON MEETING ROOM

It is an unadorned room with a simple wooden table and chairs.

One high window lets in a shaft of sunlight.

Ed and Doris sit at the table; Freddy Riedenschneider stands to one side staring up at the high window, hands dug into his pockets.

All three are motionless for a long beat. Finally:

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

...It stinks.

DORIS

But it's true.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

I don't care it's true, it's not true; it stinks. You say he was being blackmailed; by who? You don't know.
For having an affair; with who? You don't know. Did anyone else know about it? Probably not; you don't know.

ED

I knew about it. Big Dave told me about it, and the spot he was putting himself in by getting the money.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

Terrific. Your husband backs you up. That's terrific.

He starts pacing.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

...You've gotta give me something to work with. Freddy Riedenschneider is good, but he's not a magician. He can't just wave his little wand in the air and make a plausible defense materialize. Look. Look at what the other side is gonna run at us. They got the company books, prepared by you--cooked by you--that's Motive. They got a murder scene you had access to. That's Opportunity. They got that little trimmer thing he was stabbed in the throat with--a dame's weapon--

ED

It was Big Dave's.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

--don't interrupt me--that's Means. They got a fine upstanding pillar of the business community as a victim, and then they got you, a disgruntled number-juggling underling who on the day in question was drunk as a skunk and whose alibi for the time in question is being passed out at home, alone.

ED

I was with her.

Riedenschneider gives him a hard look.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

...Like I say, it stinks.

Another long pause.

ED

...I killed him.

Riedenschneider eyes him. Wheels start turning.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

OK, we forget the blackmail. You killed him. How come?

ED

He and Doris... were having an affair.

Doris eyes him. His manner does not reveal anything.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

OK, how did you know?

ED

I... just knew. A husband knows.

Riedenschneider rolls his eyes.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

Will anyone else say they knew?

ED

I don't know. I don't think so.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

How did you get into the store?

ED

I took Doris's keys.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

Will anyone say they saw you there?
On your way there? In there? On your

ED

...I don't think so.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

Will anyone corroborate and goddamn part of your story at all?

Ed returns Riedenschneider's stare. Riedenschneider pacing.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

...Come on, people. You can't help each other like that. Let's be realistic now. Let's look at our options. Well, frankly, I don't see any options.

A nod of the head indicates Doris:

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

...I cannot present Story A.

Another nod indicates Ed:

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

...I cannot present Story B. I could plead you for a nutcase but you look too composed. I could offer a guilty plea and in return they don't give you the juice, but I don't think you want to spend the rest of your life in Chino and I know you didn't hire Freddy Riedenschneider to hold your hand at a sentencing hearing. Hell, you could've gotten Lloyd Garroway for that. No, we're not giving up yet; you hired Freddy Riedenschneider, it means you're not throwing in the towel. I litigate, I don't capitulate. All right, no options, we gotta think. All right, we go back to the blackmail thing. It titillates, it's open ended...

His pacing becomes more animated.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

...And it makes him the bad guy-- ya dig around, ya never know, something unsavory from his past, he approaches you to help with the money, it's too late, his past comes back to haunt him, who's to say...

He is heading for the door.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

...Yeah. OK. Forget the jealous husband thing, that's silly; we're going with the blackmail. I'll be in touch.

The door slams.

ED (V.O.)

I found myself more and more going over to the Abundas's. It was a routine we fell into, most every evening. I even went when Walter was away on his research trips. He was a genealogist, had traced back his side of the family seven generations, his late wife's, eight. It seemed like a screwy hobby. But then maybe all hobbies are. Maybe Walter found something there, in the old county courthouses, hospital file rooms, city archives, property rolls, registries, something maybe like what I found listening to Birdy play.

At length:

ED

...So?

Riedenschneider's fixed smile now fades.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

So? So?! This could be your dolly's ticket out of the deathhouse, so!

Ed and Doris look at each other.

ED

...I don't get it.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

Look, chum, this is a guy, from what I understand, told everybody he was a war hero, right? Island hopping, practically liberated the Pacific all by himself with a knife in one hand and a gun in the other and twenty yards of Jap guts between his teeth.

ED

Yeah.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

And now it turns out this dope spent the war sitting on his ass in some boatyard in San Diego. You asked for blackmail, let me give you blackmail: Mr Hale-Fellow-Well-Met, about to open his own business here, has been lying to everybody in this town for the last four years, probably including half the people sitting on that jury. Well, it finally caught up with him--these dopes, it always does; someone threatened to spill it. Somebody knew his dirty little secret, just like your wife says. They called, they demanded money...

He is looking at Doris.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

...Did Big Dave mention that it was something about his war service? I don't know, I wasn't there, you'll have to tell us. Maybe he specified, maybe he didn't; I'm not putting words in your mouth; the point is that this liar, this cynical manipulator, this man who through his lies sneered and belittled the sacrifice and heroism of all our boys who did serve and bleed and puke and die on foreign shores, and who made a fool out of this entire town, turns to you to help him out of his jam. Fat-assed sonofabitch!

ED

So... who... who actually--

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

Who? Who?! I don't know who! But the point is that if Mr Prosecutor over there had devoted half the time he's spent persecuting this woman to even the most cursory investigation of this schmoe's past, then we might know who! But we can't know what really happened! Because of Fritz, or Werner, or whatever the hell his name is! And because Me Prosecutor is also a lazy fat-assed sonofabitch who decided it's easier to victimize your wife! Because it's easier not to look! Because the more you look, the less you know! But the beauty of it is, we don't gotta know! We just gotta show that, goddamnit, they don't know. Reasonable doubt. Science. The atom. You explain it to me. Go ahead. Try.

He chuckles as he heads for the door.

RIEDENSCHNEIDER

...Yeah, Freddy Riedenschneider sees daylight. We got a real shot at this, folks. Let's not get cocky.

The door shuts behind him.

Doris stares down at the table, as at the head of the scene.

Honey...?

The smile twitches, and then stays. Doris starts to laugh.

Riedenschneider doesn't answer; Frank turns to Ed.

...I'm Crane.

MAN

My name is Diedrickson. County medical examiner.

ED

Yeah?

DIEDRICKSON

Just came for an informal chat...

Diedrickson looks around uncomfortably.

DIEDRICKSON

...Why don't I buy you a drink?

Ed rises from his chair and, as he unbuttons his smock, addresses the new man, who still gapes.

ED

Dwight, you OK here for a few minutes?

DWIGHT

Whuh--uh, yeah, sure Ed, take your time.

BAR

It is late afternoon, dusty and empty.

Ed and Diedrickson sit on adjacent stools, Diedrickson

Rye.

ED

Just coffee.

DIEDRICKSON

You sure you don't want something stiffer?

Ed shrugs and shakes his head.

Ed doesn't answer. Diedrickson, after some more staring his hands, plows on:

DIEDRICKSON

...Doesn't become a matter of public record unless there's foul play. However. I don't believe I'm prohibited from telling you this. I guess I'm not obliged to tell you, either. I don't exactly know. But if I were the man, I'd want to be told.

ED

Told what?

DIEDRICKSON

I, uh... thanks.

The bartender has set down the drinks.

Diedrickson waits for him to leave. He takes a hit from

DIEDRICKSON

...I'm sorry to add to your burden, Crane, but I'd want to know it it was me. Your wife was pregnant. First trimester.

A pause.

DIEDRICKSON

...Well, there it is.

Another pause.

DIEDRICKSON

...I'm sorry.

He mutters to himself:

DIEDRICKSON

...Hell, I hope I've done the right thing.

ED

My wife and I had not... performed the sex act in many years.

Diedrickson stiffens.

DIEDRICKSON

(murmuring)

...Jesus.

(aloud)

...Well, that's not really my business.

He is hastily digging for money.

DIEDRICKSON

...I'm sorry. Well, there it is.

he leaves: He leaves a couple of bills on the bar and mumbles as

DIEDRICKSON

...Good luck, Crane.

His retreating footsteps echo down the bar.

APARTMENT HALLWAY

the It is a dingy hallway lit by bare bulbs. Ed stands in middle background, knocking on a door.

ED (V.O.)

Doris and I had never really talked much. I don't think that's a bad thing, necessarily. But it was funny: now I wanted to talk--now, with everyone gone. I was alone, with secrets I didn't want and no one to tell them to anyway.

The door opens and Ed is admitted by the unseen tenant.

APARTMENT

It is overfurnished with heavy, ornate chairs, sideboards, chests too big for the space and all going too seed. Surface areas are covered with yellowing lacework or exotic brocades; the one lamp has a veil thrown over it to further scrim down its feeble light.

Our pan brings us onto Ed seated at a small card table across from a small elderly woman in a shawl who is the source of the murmuring. Her eyes are squeezed shut in concentration as she mumbles.

ED (V.O.)

I visited a woman who was supposed to have powers in communicating with those who had passed across, as she called it. She said that people who passed across were picky about who they'd communicate with, not like most people you run into on this side...

The woman opens her eyes and looks at Ed.

WOMAN

Giff me your hant.

Ed places his hand in the center of the table.

ED (V.O.)

...so you needed a guide who they didn't mind talking to, someone with a gift for talking to souls...

Ed looks at the woman's spotted and vein-lined hand as it rests upon his. Her mumbling resumes.

ED (V.O.)

...Well, first she told me that my wife was in a peaceful place, that our souls were still connected by some spiritual bond, that she had never stopped loving me even though she'd done some things she wasn't proud of...

Ed looks up at the old woman.

ED (V.O.)

...She was reading me like a book.

She is stealing a glance at Ed to check his reaction.

ED (V.O.)

...And then she started talking about 'Dolores' this and 'Dolores' that and was there anything I wanted to tell 'Dolores,' and I knew I'd just be telling it to the old bat. And even if somehow Doris could hear, it wouldn't be on account of this so-called medium.

APARTMENT HALLWAY

Ed is leaving.

ED (V.O.)

She was a phony. Just another gabber.

EXT. TENEMENT

Ed emerges from the building.

ED (V.O.)

I was turning into Ann Nirdlinger, Big Dave's wife. I had to turn my back on the old lady, on the veils, on the ghosts, on the dead, before they all sucked me in...

Ed disappears into the night.

Walter looks up, the phone down and comes to the door.

WALTER

Ed, how're you holding up?

ED

I'm OK, Walter, thanks.

Walter opens the door to him.

WALTER

I'm so damn sorry about your loss. Terrible thing. Just damn terrible.

ED

Yeah.

WALTER

Birdy's in the parlor--I'm on long distance here.

ED

Sure, Walter. Thanks.

PARLOR

her:

Birdy also has papers spread across a table in front of homework. She looks up at Ed's entrance.

BIRDY

Hello, Mr Crane.

ED

Hello, Birdy.

BIRDY

We haven't seen you since... I'm terribly sorry.

Ed sits across from her.

ED

Yeah.

BIRDY

We've certainly missed you.

ED

Birdy, I've been doing a lot of thinking. There are a lot of things that haven't worked out for me. Life has dealt me some bum cards...

He is loading a cigarette into his mouth.

ED

...or maybe I just haven't played 'em right, I don't know. But you're--

BIRDY

Pop doesn't like people smoking in here.

Ed stares. This takes a moment to register.

ED

Oh. Sorry.

Birdy lowers her voice:

BIRDY

Sometimes I have a cigarette in here when he's away. Never when he's in the house. He can smell it a mile off.

Ed is pocketing the cigarette.

ED

Sure... Sure, it's his house.

BIRDY

That's what he keeps telling me.

Ed smiles thinly.

ED

Anyway, uh... my point is you're young. A kid really, your whole life ahead of you. But it's not too soon to start thinking... to start making opportunities for yourself. Before it all washes away.

BIRDY

Well, sure, I guess. Pop says so too. I work pretty hard at school.

ED

That's swell. However, the music, if you want to pursue it, well, the lessons from Mrs Swan, they'll only take you so far. There's this guy in San Francisco, I've made inquiries, everybody says he's the best. Trained lots of people who've gone on to have big concert careers, symphony orchestras, the works. His name is Jacques Carcanogues. I'm not sure I'm pronouncing it right. Anyway, he's a Frenchman.

BIRDY

Boy.

ED

You've got talent, anyone could see that. And he's the best. If he thinks a student has talent, he'll take 'em on for next to nothing. You're a cinch to be accepted, I could cover the cost of the lessons, like I said, it's pretty modest--

BIRDY

Oh, Mr Crane--

ED

I have to do it. I can't stand by and watch more things go down the drain. You're young, you don't understand.

BIRDY

Geez, Mr Crane, I don't know. I hadn't really thought about a career or stuff.

ED

I know you haven't. Look, just go meet him as a favor to me. I talked to this guy. Hope I pronounced his name right. He sounded very busy, but he's not a bad egg; he loosened up a little when I told him how talented you are. He agreed to see you this Saturday. He said maybe you were a diamond in the rough. His words.

BIRDY

Geez, Mr Crane.

ED

Just see him, as a favor to me.

No. Uh... family friend.

I am Carcanogues.

He smiles at Birdy.

BIRDY

A jerk of Carcanogues' head bids Ed rise.

Ed enters, uncomfortable. He looks around, taking in the high-ceilinged space, which is dominated by a grand piano.

Carcanogues has followed him and now runs water from a tap.

CARCANOQUES

I speak to you on ze phone, non? You have a special interest in music?

ED

Uh-huh.

CARCANOQUES

Ah yes, a music lover.

He uncaps a small bottle of pills, shakes two into his palm, tosses them back and washes them down.

He twists a cigarette into a long holder, sticks it in his mouth and lights it.

Well? How'd she do?

This elicits a Gallic frown of consideration.

CARCANOQUES

ED

I don't understand.

CARCANOQUES

Is not so hard to understand. Her playing, very polite.

ED

Did she make mistakes?

Another gallic moue:

CARCANOQUES

Mistake, no, it says E-flat, she plays E-flat. Ping-ping. Hit the right note, always. Very proper.

ED

I don't understand, no mistakes, she's just a kid--I thought you taught the, uh, the--

CARCANOQUES

Ah, but that is just what I cannot teach. I cannot teach her to have a soul. Look, monsieur, play the piano, is not about the fingers. Done with the fingers, yes. But the music, she is inside. Inside, monsieur...

A two-handed gesture, indicating his heart.

CARCANOQUES

...The music start here...

He waggles his fingers:

CARCANOQUES

...come out through here; then, maybe...

His wave takes in the heavens:

CARCANOGUES

...she can go up there.

ED

Well, look, I don't claim to be an expert--

CARCANOGUES

Then you listen to me, for I am expert. That girl, she give me a headache. She cannot play. Nice girl. Very clever hands. Nice girl. Someday, I think, maybe, she make a very good typist.

We are driving through the rural countryside of California. It is a two-lane road with little traffic. Sun stobes the car through the passing trees. Ed drives, glaring. Birdy, next to him, seems ever cheerful.

BIRDY

ED

He didn't say that.

BIRDY

But more or less.

ED

Look, I'm no expert, but--

BIRDY

It doesn't matter, Mr Crane.

ED

I'm sure there's a dozen teachers better than this clown. More qualified. Goddamn phony.

BIRDY

But it doesn't matter. Really, I'm not interested in playing music professionally.

Ed looks at her.

BIRDY

...I'm not certain I'll have a career at all, and if I do, I'll probably be a veterinarian.

ED

...Uh-huh.

BIRDY

I do appreciate the interest you've taken, though.

ED

Ah... it's nothing.

BIRDY

I'm only sorry that I didn't play better for you. I know it would've made you happy. You know what you are?

ED

Huh.

BIRDY

You're an enthusiast.

ED

Huh. Yeah. Maybe...

He loads a cigarette into his mouth.

ED

...I guess I've been all wet.

BIRDY

But I do appreciate it, Mr Crane...

She reaches over to touch his thigh.

BIRDY

...I wanted to make you happy.

She is leaning over his lap.

Yeah.

MAN

Well, of course, you don't have to rejuvenate that once every couple of years, don't you, when the peastone thins out.

Ed shrugs.

MAN

...Where does it go, huh? Like the odd sock. But you know where it goes--you probably pick pieces of it off your lawn all the time, churn it up with your lawn mower, sweep it off the walk here--pain in the neck.

Ed shrugs again.

ED

Doesn't bother me.

The man gives a practiced laugh.

ED (V.O.)

...The men's magazine also asked about remorse. Yeah, I guess I'm sorry about the pain I caused other people...

PRISON HALLWAY

He is walking the last mile.

ED (V.O.)

...but I don't regret anything. Not a thing. I used to. I used to regret being the barber.

A door at the end opens:

An electric chair. Straps open, and waiting:

ED (V.O.)

...I don't know where I'm being taken.

Ed is placed in the chair.

ED (V.O.)

...I don't know what waits for me, beyond the earth and sky. But I'm not afraid to go.

a A man stoops at his feet. He has a bucket of water and straight razor.

patch He waggles the razor in the water and starts shaving a of Ed's calf.

ED (V.O.)

...Maybe the things I don't understand will be clearer there, like when a fog blows away...

the Ed watches as the razor makes the trip from his leg to floating bucket of water, which begins to spot with small hairs.

ED (V.O.)

...Maybe Doris will be there.

They are strapping him in, connecting the electrodes.

ED (V.O.)

...And maybe there I can tell her...

The men withdraw.

ED (V.O.)

...all those things...

A thin man in a dark suit and fedora stands by the switch.

As he reaches for the switch, Ed looks up into the light.

ED (V.O.)

...they don't have words for here.
