SATURDAY PICKS

Poster artist will give lecture on his work

Nigerian-born, New York-based artist Iké Udé gives an illustrated lecture on his work today to mark the opening of his first Canadian exhibit, Celluloid Frames. His presentation is at noon at the Canadian Museum of Contemporary Photography, 1 Rideau Canal. The exhibit is at Gallery 101, 319 Lisgar St., until Feb. 14. It displays Udé's large-format, made-over movie posters (including The Rebel Genius, pictured above) that challenge stereotyping in mass media. The exhibit, which opened Thursday, can be seen from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. every day except Sunday and Monday.
