

May 17, 2015

International Day Against Homophobia and Transphobia

Today, we join the University of Toronto and broader community in commemorating the International Day against Homophobia and Transphobia. We recognize that queerphobia and transphobia as well as other forms of oppression continue to exist at our University and in society at-large, manifesting in multiple and intersecting ways. As a students' union, we remain committed to the goals of access to education for all, and the elimination of all systemic barriers facing queer and trans* identifying members of our communities. We look forward to working with our members and community partners in building positive space at UofT and a more just society for all.

In solidarity,
The APUS Team