Brad Rau

Brad Rau has been performing music for over 20 years all over Boston, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware, as a classical guitarist, rock guitarist, and rock drummer. Brad received a scholarship to attend New England Conservatory (NEC) and received a master's degree in 2015 with academic honors. At NEC, he studied classical guitar under Eliot Fisk who was the last pupil of Andres Segovia. Brad's personal learning methods have enabled him to surpass his competition memorizing over 8 hours of the most difficult repertoire for the classical guitar. Brad was a semi-finalist in the International Texas Guitar Competition of 2008. In addition to his performing career, Brad has mentored hundreds of students of all ages, styles, and levels. Many of Brad's students have gone on to develop their own music careers and teaching studios. Brad's unique teaching style combines music, physics, philosophy, and humor, making him a well-rounded instructor for a variety of students.

Under the Big Oak Tree

With a sound that draws from the Folk, Americana, and Indie-Rock worlds, Under the Oak's music is honest, approachable, and has been described as "...The Head and the Heart with less martial force and more mellow musing." - Odd Nugget

Under the Oak's Adam Monaco, Maggie Pope, Chris Peace, and Peter Oswald perform their soul-grabbing tunes with heart, crafting a sound that has attracted a loyal and enthusiastic local following.

Their debut album, Big Sky (April 2018), shares tunes that stay true to their live-performance style - rich in vocal harmonies and intimate lyrics - songs that play like life put to music.
