

Animal Science Products Receives 2015 Nacogdoches County Outstanding Small Business Award November 4, 2015

Animal Science Products, Inc., is the 2015 recipient of the Nacogdoches County Small Business Award. The award was presented by the Texas Forest Country Partnership (TFCP) which is a consortium of Economic Development organizations across 12 counties in East Texas. The presentation was awarded during the East Texas Economic Development Summit. On hand for the presentation were Texas State Representative Trent Ashby, Texas State Senator Robert Nichols, and Michael Treyger from Governor Gregg Abbott's office, and Aaron Demerson from the Texas Workforce Commission.

ASP was recognized for their developmental and global leadership in the vaccine stabilizer arena. Today, ASP treats more than 20 billion birds annually with vaccine stabilizer products. This encompasses sales in 30 countries, utilizing 20 independent distributors across 6 continents.

Commenting on receiving this award, Bailey Reynolds, President and CEO of ASP, stated, "We are flattered to receive this recognition. It is through the hard work and dedication of our team for 30 years that has brought us to where we are today. Congratulations to our team for their innovative spirit and commitment to quality and service through the years".

Today, the firm is a global leader in vaccine stabilization, offering products for water, spray, gel, and ocular delivery. Our new products - Gel-Pac, Uni-Gel, and Underline – offer both biological and positional stability delivery of not only vaccines to include viral, bacterial, and coccidial, but direct-fed microbials, probiotics, and nutritional, both in a hatchery environment as well as the farrowing crate.

Animal Science Products, Inc. is a family owned and operated business that was founded in 1985 to service all facets of the feed and food animal production industry. The company currently has sales throughout the U.S. and over 30 countries.
