a long awaited melrose development is one step closer to opening. the "topping out ceremony for bronx commons was held today on east 163rd street. many gathered as the highest portion of the building was placed on top. the project is set to feature affordable housing apartments, retail, dining, and many other facilities. organizers say they're happy to be able to move forward. "people from all ove but most especially this borough, can come and celebrate the amazing culture and music thats been born and nurtured in this borough over decades. its really been incubator for music of many nations and for immigrants from all over the world." "its a big turnin point for us because now we've basically completed the super-structure and we've already started doing the interior work that will bring us to a completion of this job we hope late summer of this year." bronx commons is set to open later this year. bronx commons is set to open later this year.
