

15. Is Christian based counseling offered?

Spirituality can be an asset in dealing with many issues with which people struggle. There are no biases at GJB Health Services regarding the type of spiritual beliefs any client may have. Whether clients identify as Christian, Jewish, Pagan, Buddhist, Muslim, Mormon, Agnostic, Atheist and/or any other type of spiritual practice (or lack thereof), it makes no difference here.

Clients are asked about religious, or spiritual, practices during their initial evaluations, or soon afterward. The reason this information is asked is because support systems are of vital importance and people who have a spiritual practice of any type can often tap into a strength that is seemingly greater than their own. If a client is uncomfortable sharing this information, they are entitled to decline answering questions about spiritually and religion.

16. Can GJB Health Services conduct court-ordered alcohol assessments? Yes, we can!
